Flooding Seine Causes Paris Crisis

Battered by crippling rain, snowstorm, many European countries are now faced with threat of serious floods as masses of snow have turned small rivers into raging torrents. Such is the case of the usually tranquil Seine River which can be seen overflowing its banks (above) into streets in the centre of Paris. Normally the river is several feet below the top of the quay. While firemen strive with pumps to keep the water level down in Notre Dame, other workers using sandbags and concrete bolstered embankments in downtown Paris.

PARIS (AP) — Rising flood waters of the River Seine washed into the crypt of Notre Dame Cathedral and forced curators at the Louvre to remove some of their priceless art treasures to safety on upper floors Saturday.

With a light rain still falling and the flood crest not yet reached, the government ordered all troops and police in the Paris area to stand by on an emergency basis.

More than 1,000 army engineers, equipped with self-propelled barges, motorboats, two-way field radios and searchlights came into the area for rescue work.

3,000 EVACUATED

Some 3,000 persons already had been moved from homes in low areas of three departments in the metropolitan area. Volunteer groups of students helped rescue people from flooded homes.

The U.S. air base at Chateauroux sent several planeloads of blankets, food packages and portable rafts to the French capital.

Thousands of anxious Parisians lined the banks of their beloved Seine as the water swirled dangerously near the top of retaining stone parapets. Officials gloomily predicted there was worse to come.

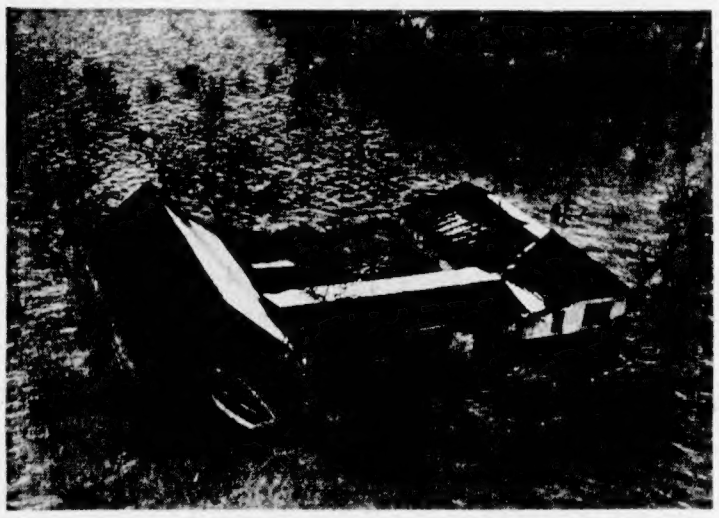
Although central Paris is not yet too badly affected, there is considerable anxiety among those living in lowlying Left Bank areas, which are actually below river level, if the retaining walls should be breached.

FACTORIES CLOSED

In the big industrial suburbs, hundreds have had to be removed from their homes and a number of factories, including part of the big nationalized Renault motor works, have been forced to close.

Eight miles of riverside quays already are under water in one stretch near Asnieres and the ground floors of houses are flooded.

The main danger to Paris now seems to come from its tributary, the Marne, which is in equally high flood.



This aerial view was made in the Manheim area of West Germany, where the Rhine River has run amok and flooded large areas. The house is completely cut off. Thousands have been evacuated from low-lying areas where property damage is running high. Latest report gave 20 as known number dead as result of floods, landslides, blizzards, across continent.

Huddling for warmth in front of the fire is a few-hours-old calf born on the farm of Mrs. Barbara Woodhouse in Hertfordshire, Eng. Keeping the young animal company and shielding him from draughts caused by recent blizzards is Mrs. Woodhouse's Great Dane, Juno. In northern Scotland, thousands of snow-bound villagers were target for Britain's biggest airline mercy mission. Thirty helicopters dropped food and medical supplies for 34 villages plus tons of hay for sheep and cattle.—(Central Press Canadian Photos.)

Good Luck for Ericka

It will be Happy New Year in Chinatown tonight. The "Year of the Sheep," the 4,653rd Chinese New Year arrives at midnight and the Chinese section here will welcome it to the din of firecrackers, gongs, cymbals and drums. Ericka Joe, 15, beams happily as she finds a Chinese water lily in bloom. If the lily blooms for the New Year it means good luck every day of the year.

'King of the Safecrackers'

Alarm System Kept Mob Safe on Jobs

(When a man switches almost overnight from being a minister to being a safecracker, he has much to learn. In yesterday's installment of this exclusive series the author told of some of his first underworld experiences. Today, his life of crime far behind him, he lives right here on Vancouver Island.)

BY HERBERT EMERSON WILSON

(Copyright, Canada 1955, by Herbert Emerson Wilson and The Daily Colonist.)

In my determination that the jobs pulled by my mob would be as thorough as the mind of man could provide, I had devised an alarm system which was to stand us in good stead. It was also destined to give me some of the worst moments of my life—but not on this job.

Out of my little black bag I took a bell buzzer with a push-button and two-way wire system, and ran it out to the street with Cox as its guardian.

I buzzed once and waited. Our plan called for a two-buzz reply if all was clear, while three buzzes meant to grab for our guns (yes, we carried them, though we never had to use them) and run for the exit, fast.

Cox's two buzzes came right back.

I touched the fuse wires to a flashlight battery — and heard nothing louder than the grunt of a pig from the safe. The door was blown—an act that was always the thrilling climax of any score for me.

I buzzed Cox once more, got his double reply, then we set to work once more. Cox, a gun in his hand, took the watchman on his half-after-the-hour rounds. I returned to the safe.

Score in Keester

This one had a thin steel secondary door which I opened quickly with an electric drill. All the score was in the keester—a small, heavy steel chest often found within safes. This I blew with a second charge of soup, then dumped the box's contents into a bag without even looking at it.

Ten minutes later we were far away, splitting up for the night.

We met next morning for the split in Herb's hotel room. That safe had held $25,000 in cash and $16,000 in negotiable bonds. It looked like a lot, but was the smallest score we ever made.

I promised to tell you about the mob's share system. Here, when we were dividing our first haul, seems as good a time as any. The system began then and never changed.

Unlike many mob chiefs, I took no cut off the top, leaving the rest to split the remainder. It was share and share alike, all down the line. In later years, when the mob operated in three districts—east, central and west—every member of the mob in one district shared in a score made in that district, even if he had no actual part in hitting the mark. And his share was the same as my own.

Each man bore his own expenses of operation, for we had no central fund. His travels on a job, his hotel bills, telegrams and other expenses, he paid for himself.

In making a split, cash of course was shared out at once. Negotiable bonds had to be fenced, at a remote market, and obviously at a discount. The net yield in turn, minus the expenses involved in the fencing, was divided equally among the mobsters concerned.

To Highest Bidder

Any valuables turning up in the loot were turned out on a table. If any one of the mob wanted them, he made a bid. Highest bidder took the watch, ring, or whatever, and paid cash for it. This cash in turn went into the common pool.

Only one of our jobs was an all-jewel score. Our mark on that occasion was the brownstone mansion of Mrs. Charlotte King Palmer, just off Fifth Avenue in New York.

Mr. Palmer, a former actress, was highly solvent, and had a large portion of her wealth in jewels—particularly in a famous string of matched pearls. When our usual casing of the mark informed us that Mrs. Palmer was also somewhat careless, three of the mob went to work.

Wearing the slight but effective disguises that were a further part of our system, the three spent hours, much of it under the stricken eyes of Mrs. Palmer and a couple of servants, in cleaning out the place.

I can still see that string of pearls — 210 of them, pear-shaped and perfectly matched —that cost Mrs. Palmer $300,000 in Paris. She had them insured for $250,000.

The rest of the jewels the boys lifted from Mrs. Palmer were valued at $400,000, making it one of our bigger scores. The stuff was harder to handle than cash, and the pearls had to be cut into three ropes, one sold in Reno, one in London, England, and one in Paris.

I said just now that disguises were a part of our system. Part of the casing of any work was a visit to that city's theatrical costuming shops to see what was new. We always kept it simple—a mustache, eyeglasses, a change of clothing—but it was effective. The descriptions handed out by Mrs. Palmer and her servants were well off the track.

There was even one occasion when we applied a disguise to the mark itself.

Soviet's 'Heart Exposed'

New Missile Big Threat To Russia

U.S. Can Strike From Home Base

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States was reported Saturday to be nearing the "payoff stage" in developing atomic missiles that can be guided from this continent to the heart of Communist Russia.

A high defense official said: "We are today at the payoff stage in the development of the missile art that far exceeds anything anybody known to me has yet done."

TERRIFIC SPEED

One type of rockets would attain an early burst of speed of about 9,000 miles per hour, to drop like bullets behind the Iron Curtain.

The other advanced type of inter-continental missile is jet powered, traveling more slowly, with built-in guidance mechanism capable of taking bearings from the stars.

The missiles men say that half the weapons launched should explode their devastating nuclear loads within a target circle of no more than 20 miles in diameter.

To achieve this degree of accuracy, the scientists are developing more effective propulsion. They are simultaneously pushing the refinement of mechanisms to direct the missiles' electronic brains.

Officials say equal emphasis is going into the job of protecting the United States against the missile threat from Russia.

But despite the Nike anti-aircraft missiles with which the army is ringing the nation's capital, there is still no guarantee that all enemy bombers would be knocked down.

Leaders Discuss Strategy

TAIPEH, Formosa (AP) — Vice-Admiral Alfred M. Pride, commander of the U.S. 7th Fleet, arrived in Taipeh this morning and plunged into a conference with Maj.-Gen. William C. Chase, head of the U.S. military assistance and advisory group.

The 7th Fleet commander, who Saturday left the British Crown colony of Hong Kong suddenly on his flagship, the cruiser Helena, landed at the city of Tainan in southern Formosa.

The purpose of his visit was not disclosed but presumably touched on possible American air and naval support for any Nationalist evacuation of the Tachen Islands 200 miles north of Formosa along the Red China coast.

It was reported here that women and children were being evacuated from the Tachens but details were being withheld for security reasons, it was stated.

Siege Cost 40 Years?

BOSTON (AP) — Additional prison terms up to 40 years each Saturday faced the four convicts in Massachusetts State prison who staged a 3½-day siege, holding five guards as hostages.

Attorney-General George Fingold said he would press for maximum sentences on charges of kidnapping, illegal possession of firearms and holding hostages.

BULLETINS

GUATEMALA CITY (AP) — Col. Francisco Cosenza, sought as the leader of Thursday's unsuccessful revolt, gained sanctuary in the El Salvador embassy Friday night by duping a policeman at the embassy gate and then pulling a pistol on him.

ROME (AP)—Sen. Umberto Terracina, balding "brain" of Italian Communism, left for Vienna Saturday amid reports he is heading behind the Iron Curtain to explain his party's internal troubles to the Kremlin.

* * *

NEUVILLE, Que. (CP)—Two men were killed Saturday when the engine of one CNR train telescoped the caboose of another, starting a fire.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Winds up to 80 miles an hour brought four inches of snow to this provincial capital Saturday.

Captain Branded Coward

HAMBURG, Germany (UP)—A German sea captain charged with cowardice by members of his crew because he would not try to rescue 12 drowning men on a sinking ship was criticized by a maritime court today.

The court ruled that Capt. Franz Krammer, 63, Hamburg, should have kept his 7,307-ton Liberian tanker Casino standing by the wreck of the Dutch coastal ship "Carpo" off the southern tip of England last November 27 until all hope for survivors had vanished.

Members of Krammer's crew testified he refused to risk a rescue attempt in the heavy North Sea storm and ordered the Casino to proceed after standing by for one hour and 55 minutes.

Half of Krammer's 36-man crew charged him with cowardice and left the ship in protest in Rotterdam two days after the Carpo went down.

Krammer defended himself by claiming he had to consider the safety of his own ship in the bad storm. He said that was why he ordered his vessel to proceed.

Toll Rises In Party On Ship

HALIFAX (CP) — The number of persons in naval hospital here following a poisonous methyl-alcohol party aboard the aircraft carrier HMCS Magnificent rose to 47 Saturday night.

Eleven of the 47 who drank the concoction were reported in serious condition and five were on the danger list.

Navy officials said the men drank a quantity of duplicating machine fluid, which had a base of deadly methyl-alcohol.

Earlier Saturday only 40 men were reported poisoned but the navy urged all men who had attended the party to come forward for treatment. Apparently another seven sought treatment.

Naval doctors said as little as one ounce could seriously endanger the person who drank it.

Names of the sailors were withheld until close relatives could be notified.

Park Bench to Judge's Bench

Derelict Starts Back

CHICAGO (UP)—A once-distinguished law professor who proved to a judge he has "still got it," started to battle his way back from skid row yesterday with the promise of a job as court adviser.

William G. Wood, 65, who says he drank himself to skid row 2½ years ago because of trouble at home, won the job offer at $5 a day yesterday by successfully defending a fellow derelict in police court.

Wood was called to the bench as Judge Hyman Feldman started to hear the cases of 140 drunks picked up from skid row streets and alleys during the night.

"Let's see if you've still got it," Feldman said after learning that Wood had once been a lawyer and a law professor. "I want you to defend one of these men."

Tieless and wearing rumpled clothing, Wood called on his 40 years of legal experience and won the case.

Feldman was so impressed he said he would like to have Wood sit on the bench with him and help dispose of the skid row cases.

"Judge, for $5 a day, I'll come in here every day and try to be whatever help I can," Wood said.

"You've got a job," replied Feldman. "You come in here Monday — sober — and you'll get your $5."

Wood spent the rest of the day at the judge's side, advising him on the character of the men being tried.

He said he once taught law at Kent College of Law here and that three judges now sitting on the county court bench had been his students back in his "good" days.

Canada Tour Set for Attlee

OTTAWA (CP)—Clement Attlee, Britain's Labor Party leader, will make a coast-to-coast tour of Canada between April 11 and May 1, a spokesman for the CCF national council announced here yesterday. A schedule has not yet been completed.

Pool Shark Winds Up Behind the Eight-Ball

CALGARY, Alta. (BUP)—James Booth pleaded guilty to a charge of vagrancy yesterday, but one sneer too many cost him an extra three months in jail.

Booth had told police he "got by" on the money he made playing pool. He pleaded guilty to the charge.

"Have you anything to say," asked the magistrate.

Booth shrugged.

"Three months," said the magistrate.

"Hah, hah," sneered Booth.

"Six months," said the magistrate.

Booth returned to the cells without comment.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

THOSE otters used to come around Max Lohbrunner's boat and take food from his hand. The fact that they were so tame was curious enough.

Stranger still was their trip to Stanley Park zoo and back.

Max told me the yarn last year, and I was saving it for later, but it leaked out to another newspaperman. So I called on Max at his new and rather unromatic location alongside the garbage wharf, and had him refresh my memory of the otters.

In an interview punctuated by the cries of gulls and occasional melancholy howls from the dog pound, he told me the story again.

The old mariner likes to make the approach to his floating home as perilous as possible, so as to discourage all but the bravest visitors. At least, that was the impression I got. A spindly ladder with a 60-degree slope served as a gangplank to the deck of Max's whaler, Green. I nervously edged my way down it, in acute fear of plunging 10 feet to the greasy water and clonking my head on a log.

For all his grey hairs, Max walked down the ladder like a cat. I use the figure of speech precisely, because there was a cat nearby for comparison. Two cats, in fact—Max's old warrior Beachworm, and a black-and-white youngster, both of them leaping and climbing between the wharf and the boats and the garbage scow with high nonchalance.

I sat on a dinghy on the cluttered deck of Max's float, between the whaler and the fishboat, a place which I had reached by clambering down yet another ladder, this one a rusty metal ladder leaning on one side and supported by a piece of string tied to the rail of the whaler.

Max told me how the cats often fell in the water and didn't seem to mind, and how Beachworm, who was always getting beaten up by those tough Chinatown cats, once rolled into the sea during a battle, and struck out bravely for the float, while the Chinatown cat fled in terror.

What with the talk about the cats, and Max's pet cormorant, and the old sealing days, and one thing and another, it was quite a while before we got around to the subject of otters. As it happened, Max told me how the cat had got himself boxed in between two otters that were approaching him from opposite ends of a log.

"Well, anyways," as Max expressed it, the otters began by cautiously snatching fish bait which Max laid down, and grew bolder and bolder until they were entering his cabin and allowing themselves to be petted and fed by hand.

They would frisk and gurgle at the skylight until Max let them in. And they took food from his hand, rolled over on their backs to have their stomachs scratched.

They appeared only for Max, though—seldom for visitors.

* * *

Allan Best, curator of Vancouver's Stanley Park zoo, came to Max and asked if he would sell five tame otters for the zoo. Nothing doing, Max said. It was like selling a friend to be a slave. Mr. Best was very anxious to make a deal. He offered more and more money. Max still refused. But when the curator promised that he would merely borrow three otters and send them back as soon as he trapped some of his own, Max weakened. Against his better judgment he let the otters go.

Allan Best told him the otters would be housed in a fine new enclosure with walls six to eight feet high, curved inward at the top.

"That'll never hold 'em," Max said. "They'll jump out, for sure." He explained that otters, despite their short legs, could jump tremendous distances by tensing the whole body, like a flea.

The curator thought the wall would keep them in, all right. The day after Max had shipped the first of them, he got a wire. The otter had escaped. Not long afterward, the others escaped.

One night there came that familiar gurgling sound at the skylight. One, two, three of the tame otters glided in. Max watched them for a while, unwilling to believe what he saw.

But there was no mistaking the little tricks and mannerisms of those beasts—the way they "talked" and rolled over to be fondled. They were the three otters from Stanley Park. Somehow they had swum home across Georgia Strait. Max lay awake all that night wondering about it. He didn't try to kid himself. They were the same otters, and no mistake.

* * *

When the Florence Chadwick swim was on, he had a great idea. He would set loose a sea otter at Port Angeles at the same time Florence started from here—and very likely it would be home when the human swimmer was still flailing in the strait.

But some blasting across the harbor scared the otters away, and Max couldn't find them. (The blasting also killed about 90 per cent of the herring fry up to the CNR bridge, Max thinks.) A few otter have been seen since that time, but the family of tame otters has vanished. Max thinks they have been shot or trapped. Once a tame otter came to him with a bullet hole in its neck, which later healed. But now they seem to have gone for good.

Should Max make friends with a new otter family, however, it is possible that the homing-otter plan may be revived when the straits-swimming season opens.

So Marilyn Bell and Florence Chadwick (if they arrive) may have to swim against a sleek professional with a fur coat.

Doctors Divided On Cause of Asthma

(This column is presented by The Colonist through the co-operation of the B.C. Medical Association. The author in each case is an authority on the field discussed, although professional ethics dictate that he cannot answer personal queries.)

The windpipe and larger breathing passages, called bronchi, are rigid tubes of cartilage. But the smaller ones, leading to the air sacs of the lungs, have walls of muscle. This "involuntary" muscle is controlled by a part of the nervous system over which we have no conscious influence, but which is powerfully affected by our emotions.

If the muscular walls of the smaller bronchi contract tightly in spasm, the passageway is narrowed and air has to be forced through them. Because we have strong muscles for breathing in, the extra effort is usually not difficult; but breathing out is usually a passive act, and our muscles for forcible expiration are weak. Thus in bronchospasm, the patient generally draws air into his lungs fairly freely, but blows it out with great effort. This is what happens in bronchial asthma.

There is no argument that bronchospasm can be an expression of allergic senstivity, and often is. There is no argument that bronchospasm can be an expression of emotional inbalance, and often is. But in medical circles the argument is loud and long as to the relative importance of the two factors. This argument is also useless, as neither side has the least intention of believing the other. The allergists say that asthma is an allergic disease with emotional reactions, while other opponents say it is a psychiatric condition with important organic repercussions. Fortunately the public does not suffer from this dissention, as both sides are well agreed on basic lines of treatment.

Asthma assumes many patterns in different people. Some patients have protracted bouts, where for days or even weeks thir breathing is difficult enough to be a nuisance but not incapacitating. Others will have sporadic attacks where for a day or two, just sitting quietly and breathing is their full-time job.

Many asthmatics are usually free of symptoms except at night. A few unfortunates, periodically [illegible] asthmaticus," an extreme degree of bronchospasm, which is a medical emergency requiring immediate and aggressive treatment in hospital.

Dusts, pollens, danders and certain foods are the commonest substances from outside the body which may stimulate bronchospasm in an allergic person; often these can be eliminated from the patient's encironment, and where this is not possible he may occasionally be desensitized to them. Very often the offending substance is within the patient himself—the germs which he harbors as chronic infection in his nose, throat, or especially sinuses. Sometimes this infection may be eliminated.

Where the asthma is the expression of emotional disturbance, its roots usually extend deep into the patient's basic personality, and the results of psychiatric treatment are not very encouraging. However, many people remain emotionally compensated as long as their life situation remains favorable, only breaking down into asthmastics under stress. Often this stress may be due to a social or domestic problem, the solution of which cures the asthma.

Treatment of the bronchospasm itself relies on drugs which have the action of dilating the bronchial tubes: adrenalin, aminophyllin, ephedrine and certain synthetic preparations. Most of them may be taken by mouth, inhaled as a spray, injected under the skin or put straight into the bloodstream according to the severity of the attack and the urgency of relief. Sedatives are necessary in small, regular doses for the chronic sufferer, and in large doses during the acute attack, but it is now recognized that morphia or any allied drug must never be used. There is a new detergent, breathed in a very fine spray, which is proving helpful in severe attacks.

Although people who develop asthma tend to suffer from it, through wide swings of getting better and getting worse, the rest of their lives, it is not uncommon, as the patient goes from one age period to another, for the disease to taper off and disappear without apparent reason.

A PADRE IN PRINT

BY REV. WILLIAM HILLS

One of the best natural resources the citizens of this province enjoy is not to be found growing out of the earth or swimming in the sea. It is not even natural gas—political or otherwise.

[illegible] is—cannot be bought or sold. Indeed, if you were to make a commercial transaction out of it, you would debase it and corrupt it.

Where is it and what is it?

It is to be found in the hearts of the people who live in the state of Washington. It is the spontaneous capacity of those American citizens to think well of anyone who hails from British Columbia.

In another year's time, I shall have spent 10 years as a citizen-member of this great Pacific Northwest country. During that time, it has been my lot to have made many trips across that international boundary.

On not one single occasion have I felt like a stranger in a strange land. Even the necessary formalities of immigration and customs inspection—irritating though they may be to certain delicate and susceptible personalities — have an unblemished record in my memory.

Indeed, the only jarring reminiscence in this respect was occasioned by a Canadian immigration officer at the Vancouver airport some years ago who, looking at my clerical collar, closely questioned the many port-of-entry stamps on my Canadian passport.

Perhaps he thought I was using my clerical garments as a cloak for international iniquity. Or perhaps he just didn't like parsons!

* * *

On Wednesday morning, I was ushered into the spacious office of the secretary of state for Washington.

Hon. Earl Coe is a big man, and, as a Democrat, has weathered the storm of many political battles.

He pointed with obvious pride to a valuable and historic painting of George Washington. The frame around this canvas, he told me, was insured for $20,000!

But then he went over to his desk and picked up a little brochure. Flipping over its pages, he told me that the State of Washington was going to support this enterprise in no uncertain terms this year.

Imagine my warm surprise when I learned that it was last year's report of our own Pacific National Exhibition at Vancouver!

Then there was Representa- [illegible] antechamber to his own legislative hall, spoke with pride of the fact that he had had charge of some 80 Canadian Boy Scouts at a recent Scout jamboree in the United States.

These distinguished people are not only good neighbors—they are friends as well.

But the crowning moment of this amity came when, with the clerk of the Senate on my left arm and the senator from Olympia on my right, this alien Canadian was conducted over the red carpet of the Senate chamber to the Speaker's rostrum.

Lieutenant-Governor Anderson banged his gavel, suspended the rules of order, and permitted a subject of the Queen of Canada to make a short address to the assembly.

At that moment, I could not help thinking of a little bit of history. I thought of George Washington, of course, and the Battle of Bunker Hill. I thought of President Polk, the Oregon boundary dispute and the cry of "Fifty-four Forty or Fight!" I even thought of the German Kaiser making a certain decision about the Strait of Juan de Fuca!

And then I looked into the faces of these American legislators and found there only friendliness and good will toward the Canadian province which is bursting its britches in economic growth and whose capital is Victoria.

Poinsettias Hate Drafts

BY M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

Sick Poinsettia (J. A. H., Victoria)—I think the reason the leaves of your poinsettia are dropping is either because the night temperature of your dining room is dropping too low, or possibly the plant is in a draft, which is something poinsettias can't abide.

These glamorous Mexicans are heat-lovers, and need an almost constant temperature between 60 nad 70 degrees.

Sweet Marjoram (J. L. H., Victoria)—There are three different varieties of sweet marjoram ordinarily grown for use in poultry dressing, two of them hardy, and the third too tender to be carried over the winter without some form of protection. It is just possible that the plant you grew successfully in Montreal was one of the hardy ones, while the one you fail with here is the delicate variety, Origanum Majorana.

I suggest that you try the Origanum Onites, the pot marjoram, which likes a sunny, south-facing site and light, well-drained soil. Like most of the Mediterranean plants, they seem to respond well to some fine gravel mixed into the planting site to simulate the thin soil and rocky, sun-baked headlands of their native shore.

Ever-Bearing Raspberries — (G.L.E., Victoria). The pruning of two-crop raspberries such as September and Indian Summer is about the same as with the regular kinds, except that they are never tipped. After frost has brought fruiting to a close, all canes which have borne fruit are cut right off at ground level. The young canes which came up last summer and have not borne fruit are thinned enough to give each one six inches each way of breathing space.

Peach Tree Pruning—(H.M., Victoria). The tree trained against your garage wall should first have all the "breast" wood cut off. These are the shoots and branches growing straight out from the wall, and which cannot, therefore, be trained against it. Next, deal with any weak twigs and limbs, and thin out the young shoots which were formed last year by taking out the weaker ones, leaving at least three inches between shoots. Long shoots should be shortened to 12 inches.

It is a good idea to take out one or two of the older branches every year, cutting them right back to a good strong bud near their point of origin. This will keep your tree young, and if it isn't done, you'll only get a fringe of fruit out near the tips of the branches.

Chinese Lily — (W.M.S., Victoria)—I'm afraid I can't help you with your problem, as I have never run across the bulb from North China you mention, with leaves and flowers only two or three inches tall.

The only Chinese Lily I know is Narcissus Tazetta Orientalis, known variously as the Chinese Sacred Lily, Joss Flower, Water Fairy Flower, Good Luck Lily, and Flower of the Gods. It is simply a narcissus which happens to grow well in bowls of wet pebbles, bearing bunches of fragrant pale yellow flowers 12 to 16 inches tall. The culture is the same as for the Paper White narcissus grown in pebbles.

Western Sagebrush — (W.T., Victoria)—I stand corrected. I must have had holes in my head when I called the sage brush of the western plains a sage. You are quite right—it is a wormwood.

Soil Conditioner — (R.G.S., Victoria)—The benefits which accrue from digging in rotted leaves and compost do not come about entirely from the number of earthworms attracted. This organic material is favorable to the increase of beneficial bacteria and soil fungi, too, and a great deal of the benefit comes from the simple mechanical improvement of the soil texture. Worms are good, but they don't carry the total load of soil fertility.

It is incorrect, too, to say that bag fertilizers kill off the worms. They will if they are used in the wrong way—applied too heavily—but so will fresh manure. Chemical fertilizers, properly applied, can do nothing but good, unless the novice gardener relies too heavily upon them and fails to keep up the humus content of his soil.

City Men To Train In Subs

Two Victoria men are in the third draft of RCN personnel selected to take submarine training in the United Kingdom.

They are CPO Francis J. Meredith, 26, 2378 Cranmore Road, and PO Graham A. McKay, 35, Belmont Park.

They will leave Montreal by charter flight on Monday.

The 42 volunteers, drawn from ships and establishments across the country, will join two previous drafts at HMS Dolphin, the Royal Navy's submarine training base near Portsmouth.

Periods of training range from three months to a year, depending on rank and duties involved. Personnel will mostly go to the Sixth Submarine Squadron of the Royal Navy, to be based at Halifax to provide additional training facilities for the RCN's anti-submarine fleet and aircraft.

Burns Dinner At Empress

The St. Andrew's and Caledonian Society will hold its annual Burns Night dinner and ball at the Empress Hotel next Tuesday.

The address to the Immortal Memory will be given by Dr. Hugh Morrison of the B.C. Civil Service Commission, and David Hill, president of the society, will give the address to the haggis.

Master of ceremonies will be J. Robinson.

Dinner will be at 6.30 p.m. The grand march will start the ball at 9 p.m.

Glass in Pastry Worth $3,500

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) —The piece of glass that aircraft engineer Peter M. Tropea found in his gooseberry pie won him a $3,500 jury verdict. Tropea sued the Hughes Aircraft Co. for $75,000.

Scholarship Announced

A donation of $8,000, to provide tuition, board, room and incidentals for two British schoolboys at the University of British Columbia, has been made by Alfred Johnson, 2001 Runnymede.

The boys will be selected by a committee which includes the headmaster of Mr. Johnson's old school, the B.C. agent-general's office and others, in consultation with the university.

NEWS REVIEW

By Ron Ellis

From CP, AP, Reuters, BUP

The Soviet Union has called home its top-ranking diplomats from western capitals for what is believed to be a comprehensive review and possible revision of the Kremlin's policy in those areas. Either in Moscow or en route are ambassadors Jacob Malik from London, Georgi Zarubin from Washington, Sergei Vinogradov from Paris and Georgi Pushkin from Berlin. They are members of the foreign ministry's policy-making board.

At Baden-Baden, Germany, Chancellor Konrad Adenauer last night denounced the latest Russian proposal for a Big Four meeting as an effort "to bring Germany under direct or indirect dependence on Moscow." The 79-year-old leader said "the integration of the free peoples of the West including Germany, is the clear and understandable goal of our policy."

Ottawa reports a record-breaking 13,689,690 persons saw films produced by the National Film Board at non-theatrical foreign showings in 1953. A report tabled in the Commons listed 21,505 theatrical bookings—an increase of 33 per cent—in foreign countries in addition to the record non-theatrical attendance.

A Berlin dispatch says the Soviet Red Army in East Germany is being equipped with tactical atomic weapons including atomic artillery and guided missiles. A heavily-guarded train arrived recently in the Soviet zone town of Hummersdorf-Sperenberg, 40 miles south of Berlin, with atomic weapons for Russian troops.

In Vienna, Austria, a girl who staked kisses against bottles of wine in a card game with four men, and lost, later charged them with violent assault and offenses against public decency when they tried to collect their winnings. A judge sentenced the men to five days' imprisonment on the "decency" charge but ruled there had been no assault because the girl had not seriously resisted the collection of the debts.

An uneasy group of Arab premiers in Cairo yesterday sought to settle their darkening dispute over joining with the West in a Middle East defense pact. Egypt called the emergency meeting in an attempt to line up her Arab neighbors against oil-rich Iraq, whose premier, Nuri Said, announced last week his government would sign a mutual defense treaty with American-backed Turkey. Nuri's action cracked the unity of the Arab League, which has remained aloof from ties with either East or West, and threatens Egypt's leadership of the Arab world.

In Winnipeg yesterday Justice Minister Garson blasted the Progressive Conservative party and its president, George Hees, for "crying depression." In an address to the annual meeting of the Manitoba Liberal Progressive Association, Mr. Garson said Canadians can look to the future with confidence.

Three members of the Australian Antarctic expedition report that they discovered a 100-mile mountain chain on December 29 and that it has distinct mineral possibilities. R. G. Casey, Australia's minister of external affairs and external territories, says the range lies within Australian Antarctic territory, which covers 2,500,000 square miles.

Nearly 800,000 workers virtually halted the Ruhr's vast iron, coal and steel production yesterday in a one-day strike to protest an anti-union remark by the head of a mining concern. The strike raised government fears that an even more crippling strike might be called later to support the Socialist party's all-out campaign against West German rearmament.

At Springfield, Ill., discovery of a photograph of Abraham Lincoln, believed to be long-missing "picture No. 72", taken almost a century ago, was reported yesterday. The Illinois State Journal and Register said the photo, which portrays Lincoln at the age of 50 with a short beard, was found in the store of a paint dealer who bought it from a customer for $3.50.

Nationally-known criminologist Dr. Paul Kirk arrived in Cleveland, Ohio yesterday to "take a look" at the wife-slaying case which ended in Dr. Samuel Sheppard's conviction of second degree murder.

Atcherly In City On Tour

Air Vice-Marshal R. L. R. Atcherley visited Victoria last week to renew acquaintances with former RAF colleagues.

He left yesterday morning by RCAF aircraft for Whidby Island, near Seattle.

He commands the Royal Air Force staff with British Joint Services in Washington, and was in the Pacific Northwest on a tour of U.S. Air Force stations.

He was met Friday at Patricia Bay Airport by Group Capt. F. O. Soden and Sqdn.-Ldr. A. R. Stanley-Clarke, who accompanied him on visits to other ex-RAF officers here.

Air Vice-Marshal Atcherley has been mooted as next marshal of the Royal Air Force.

Budgie Talks Way Home

TORONTO (CP)—Mr. and Mrs. Howard Brasseur said Saturday Tippy, their pet budgie bird, talked his way home.

They said he flew away last Monday and they gave him up for lost.

However, as they discovered later, Tippy went to an apartment a few blocks away and stayed there.

The occupants of the apartment, recent arrivals in Canada, speak little English.

Friday night the apartment-dwellers had guests who know the language.

The hosts showed off the bird and it obliged by chanting:

"My name is Tippy Brasseur and I live at 859 Davenport Road, LA-2277."

The guests called the telephone number and the Brasseurs came right over.

Forces Joined To Launch Heavy Scow

Island Tug & Barge Company and Victoria Machinery Depot combined forces Friday to launch a 520-ton steel scow, second of three at the shipyard for the tug company.

Mrs. Ellice Cavin, wife of the well-known Island Tug captain, tossed the traditional bottle of champagne but it did not break and VMD official Thomas Moffat stepped forward to complete the job.

The scow, like one launched in November and another to be completed this month, will carry 1,100 tons of chips between B.C. and United States ports.

Legion Plans Social Evening

Esquimalt Canadian Legion Branch will hold a social evening next Friday.

Al Allnutt is arranging the program and J. E. Carey will be master of ceremonies.

Bridge Aid Asked

The city council finance committee will consider asking the provincial government for financial support in building a $1,000,000 Point Ellice bridge, [illegible] Gardiner J. Edgelow told The Daily Colonist last night.

If the provincial government is going into the bridge business by purchasing the Lions Gate span in Vancouver, "it should certainly help us," he said. He added that a similar condition exists with regard to Point Ellice bridge as does in Vancouver.

Alderman Edgelow also thought the federal government should be asked to help in building a bridge.

"I think it is a federal responsibility also, because of the traffic between Work Point Barracks and Bay Street Armory," he said.

"If we get support from the provincial and federal governments we would soon have a new bridge at Point Ellice. The city already has nearly $200,000 saved as a bridge fund from land sales," he added. He said cost of a new bridge would be between $900,000 and $1,000,000.

Alderman Edgelow, who is a member of the finance committee, said the question will be raised at the next finance committee meeting and "I am sure we will recommend to city council that the provincial government be approached to see what it will do about the bridge."

ABSOLUTE NECESSITY

He pointed out that a new bridge was an absolute necessity. "Even the fire engines must now stop at the bridge when they are on the way to a fire. That delay could be disastrous in the case of a big fire," he said.

Through a deal announced Friday by Premier Bennett the general taxpayers of British Columbia will help subsidize the purchase of Lions Gate toll bridge so that eventually it will be a toll-free bridge.

While the Point Ellice Bridge is not a toll bridge, the principle of assistance from the general provincial treasury is the same, it is argued.

Both the Lions Gate and Point Ellice bridges cross harbor waters and both connect separate municipalities. Although Point Ellice Bridge is entirely on city land, it is a vital link with Esquimalt.

Under regulations of the Toll Highway and Bridges Authority (1933), the government is empowered to subsidize the bridge purchase by half the cost. It pays 2½ per cent of the capital indebtedness each year.

Bridge operation pays the other 2½ per cent of the annual mortgage reduction (usually 5 per cent of the whole) annually.

This means Victorians and all other B.C. taxpayers are helping to buy the Lions Gate bridge.

Light Hand Pays Off

Leave the heavy make-up to the people in show business, Ice Cycles' star Patti Hittle says to Victoria women. The eyebrow pencil she used before a show yesterday has no part in her everyday makeup kit.

Ice Cyclist Says:

Pancake Has Little Glamour

Women in Victoria and all parts of Canada and the United States generally wear too much make-up, says a 24-year-old star of Ice Cycles of 1955.

Tiny Patti Hittle, 24-year-old adagio skater from Laramie, Wyo., who sees all parts of North America during the show's year-long tours, wants everyone to know that heavy make-up is not a habit for the 40 women in the cast.

"People see the girls in the show wear very heavy make-up and sometimes get the idea it maks them glamorous to do the same," she says.

"It just makes them very conspicious and very unnatural," Patti adds. "We wear heavy make-up on the ice because the lights would turn ordinary make-up into nothing at all."

IN HIGH SCHOOL

Girls should wait until they are in high school before using cosmetics and then only lipstick, adding "a little bit of powder for a very special occasion."

"If they feel they must wear make-up," she says, "make it light and in the coloring best suited to them."

In the show, Patti wears pancake, rouge, eye shadow, heading on eyelashes, heavy eyebrows and lipstick. Ordinarily, she uses a "very, very light powder base for lipstick."

She says a touch of mascara is "very permissible" for a party, but not the rest because, "I think the fellows prefer the natural look."

Big Move Half Over

NORTH LUFFENHAM, Eng. (BUP) — Operation "Rumba Queen" — moving No. 1 Fighter Wing to its new base at Marville, France—is half completed, the RCAF said Saturday.

The move required airlifting some 600,000 pounds of supplies and equipment. About 300,000 pounds have been flown across the Channel in the first six days of the two-week operation.

Mrs. Findlay Rites Monday

Funeral service will be held at 3 p.m. Monday in Sands' Funeral Home for Mrs. Ellen Jane Findlay, 67, of 625 Harbinger, a resident of Victoria for 48 years, who died in St. Joseph's Hospital Wednesday.

Survivors include one sister, Mrs. Agnes Scott, and one brother, Edgar S. Parr, 397 Arnold. Rev. William Allan will officiate at the services, which will be followed by burial at Ross Bay Cemetery.

LEADING CITY

Johannesburg is South Africa's largest city, with population of 880,000 compared to 571,000 for Capetown.

New York City has almost 45,000 elevators, including 30,000 passenger lifts.

People Calm, Tweedy, Aged

Editor Sees Victoria As Rest Home, Not City

Victoria is much more a rest home than a city, according to Gerald Filion, editor of the Montreal newspaper Le Devoir.

Mr. Filion, discussing his recent visit to Victoria, called this city the "last refuge" of the Victorian middle class.

"People have the serious expression, the slow step, the accent of the Old Country," he said. "Nothing happens, you would think . . ."

The striking feature of the city was the calm of its citizens and their advanced age.

"No one is in a hurry," the editor said. "The cars move like hearses and the people walk like pallbearers . . . the average age of the inhabitants must be at least 70 years."

Everyone wears tweeds, drives a little English car and speaks with a slight Oxford accent.

Victoria is "the meeting place of the retired from all over the Empire," Mr. Filion added.

For Carrier Use

Speedy Gnat Eyed By Canada's Navy

BY TOM GREEN
Colonist Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA — A newly-developed British Gnat jet fighter, capable of flying at speeds of more than 500 miles per hour, has attracted the attention of the Royal Canadian Navy for possible use on Canada's aircraft carriers.

An officer of the RCN said yesterday the navy was "interested" in the Gnat fighter, but added that no consideration to purchasing the aircraft was being given at this time.

The Gnat, a tiny, fast jet, was developed by the Royal Air Force.

"The Canadian navy is interested in all types of new jet aircraft," the officer explained. "This is in line with our policy of keeping abreast of all developments in the jet field."

Cmdr. H. J. Hunter, attached to the chief of naval aviation for the RCN, recently visited Britain to inspect and fly the Gnat fighter. His reports are that he was very impressed with the aircraft.

It was pointed out here that the RCN soon would be receiving the first of a number of United States-built Banshee jet fighters for aircraft carrier duties. The Banshees will be assigned to the new carrier, Bonaventure, still under construction.

There is no need for further jets for aircraft carrier service at this time, it was suggested.

Three Ships Collide

LIVERPOOL, England (Reuters)—The Cunard liner Parthia, inbound from New York, was in a three-ship collision in the River Mersey in dense fog Saturday. No casualties were reported.

A member of the 13,362-ton Parthia's crew said the collision occurred while the liner was slowly creeping through the thick fog.

"First of all we struck a buoy and I think it broke away from its moorings."

The next moment, he said, there was a crash as the Parthia and the Flamenco, 8,490 tons, collided.

"Then we narrowly avoided collision with another ship which scraped along our side. This ship was the City of Worcester."

The City of Worcester is a 5,576-ton British cargo ship.

SOUTHAMPTON (Reuters) —The liner Queen Elizabeth scraped the sides of a drydock here as she was being taken in for her annual overhaul.

A Cunard Line spokesman said that there was "no damage of any consequence" to the 83,673-ton ship.

Black Wolves Badger Red Railway Lines

VIENNA (NANA)—Emergence of a Polish sabotage organization known as the Black Wolves has been disclosed by the Warsaw press.

These "savage beasts, hirelings of the imperialist warmongers," as the red press calls them, are indicated to be concentrating on destruction of railroad lines between Moscow and East Berlin.

Seven "Wolves" were recently sentenced to a total of 85 years at hard labor by a military court in southern Poland.

Peasants, Workers Strap; Intelligentsia Merely Slap

PARIS (NANA)—Virtually all Frenchmen still resort to the good old-fashioned spanking when their offspring get out of hand. But, the technique—according to a report this week from the National Centre for Scientific research—varies according to the intellectual level of the parent.

The less-educated classes, said the report, get down to the job with a will, using straps and canes. The better educated use the bare hand.

But the strap and cane devotees are dwindling in number. They account for only 15 per cent of fathers. The bare-handed brigade, however, makes up most of the remaining 85 per cent.

How come all this chastisement in France?

Says the research centre: "Much of it is due to bad housing conditions." Too many children in too small a space create pandemonium. Papa blows his top.

That, at least, accounts for the trouble in the working classes which include 180,000 Parisian slum-dwellers and proportionate numbers in other big cities.

As to the rest, the centre figures that the intelligentsia are driven to corporal punishment when the kiddies don't measure up to their expectations of rational behavior. In the peasant class, fathers just figure that the odd smack or two is good for the soul.

Side conclusion: working class children see more of their fathers than children in any other groups. The intellectual father is too busy with his own life. The peasant father leaves the kids to grandma.

Can You Fight Off Flu on the Job?

No, in fact, it is highly important to stay in bed from the time you catch influenza until you are completely recovered and the danger of complications is past. Most of the half million Americans who are believed to have died of influenza in the epidemic of 1918-1919 were actually killed by the complication of pneumonia.

Your doctor can provide you with effective help in preventing influenza and with lifesaving care during illness. We can fill any of your prescriptions promptly.

Sunshine and Happiness

WHAT is it that puts happiness into the lives of the handicapped, is it possessions, or hope or the knowledge that someone really cares? It is hope, surely, that is the compelling factor, coupled with the knowledge that others share that confidence. All of the dollars expended on the building and operation of the Queen Alexandra Solarium for children, allied to the best of medical skills and patient nursing attention, could scarcely have effected one cure if it had not been for hope and confidence in the minds of the little sufferers. The cures that came—and today there have been many—were speeded by sunshine and happiness in the atmosphere of the place itself.

In opening their annual drive for the Vancouver Island institution the Solarium Junior League is appealing to a community which knows the circumstances intimately. The appeal is made after a first contribution involving 365 days of personal effort on the part of the Junior League itself. And what is sought, a small fortune from a handful of well-to-do individuals? No, it is not that; it is sympathy, understanding, and the smallest piece of silver in Canada's currency—a dime from everybody.

The Solarium "Shower of Dimes," which will open in February, is now as much a part of Victoria as Victoria Day. It is a crusade rather than a drive, and no one in the general sense will be solicited. But if there are dimes loose in the pocket, a fellow-feeling for the lot of little children who started life with a handicap, both will be welcome contributions in the "Shower of Dimes." Happiness, sunshine in the heart, is the natural right of all children, but sometimes fate loads the scales unevenly. Let's help to right the balance when the chance comes our way!

Cold Comfort

TODAY'S Health, a magazine published by the American Medical Association, has come up with the profound conclusion that changes in the weather can cause the common cold. If medical research keeps up this pace, eventually it will have discovered everything that everybody else has always known.

While one has immense admiration for the brilliant achievements of this branch of science in the last few decades, there are times when it seems a little out of touch with reality. The givers of medical advice don't seem to perceive the gulf between precept and practice—between giving advice and carrying it out. For instance along with the above information goes a charming piece of advice to the effect that the best way to avoid colds is to stay away from other people. That's about on a par with saying that a man will escape death from alcoholism by never taking a drink. When colds abound what are people supposed to do—turn themselves into hermits with a cave or a tree apiece? In this modern age of urban living—of close proximity in offices, of crowded stores and standing room only on buses—will someone please explain how the average human being desirous of keeping free from infection is to stay out of sneezing range of all his fellows?

Other authorities in the same field repeatedly advise retirement to bed for 48 hours at the first appearance of cold symptoms. Excellent advice, maybe—but hardly conducive to earning a steady living. Not many people could afford, either financially or from the viewpoint of personal convenience, to take to bed every time they felt an attack of the sniffles coming on. Absenteeism, serious enough already, would deal the economy of the country a severe jolt, too.

It must be embarrassing to the medical researchers to have to confess that after all these years that they cannot yet cope with the problem of the common cold, beyond offering ways for sufferers to be made a little more comfortable until they have got over it. Scientists never admit defeat, though; which encourages some hope that one day they will cry the "Eureka" everyone is waiting to hear. Until then one could wish they would confine helpful hints within practical bounds.

Quaint as They Come

STRANGE that local tourist supporters, in their own business right proponents of modern precept and practice, are so obsessed with phony imitation of the past. The latest proposal, that policemen should readopt the "bobby" helmet so they will look like little Londoners, is so lamentably true to form. One thought and one only seems to dominate their minds—to make "guys" out of Victorians for all the world to come and gape at.

If, however, these crumpet-cum-dowager advocates are desperate for bobby helmets perhaps they should do as one officer aptly suggests—put them on their own heads. Policemen will not mind, indeed probably they will gladly escort them in state to the CPR dock, there to stand like the stookies they would be for the delusion of our visiators. There is in fact no need to stop at a helmet; they might also wear a smock, with woollen hose and buckled shoes, and carry a town crier's bell to boot. If a fake is to be a fake let it be an honest-to-goodness fake. This would ensure that tourists are properly impressed with the quaintness so inherent in such foolish ideas.

The bobby helmet was killed stone dead years ago; let it stay decently buried as the antique it is. Nor is the police force of Victoria an adjunct of tourism. It has much more in common with hamburgers than antimacassars for it has a serious job to do in keeping with the modern tempo of this now cosmopolitan city. There is enough in this to keep it busy without putting on a false face for the benefit of innocents traveling abroad.

Tourist Ideas

It isn't enough to have a good resort with adequate facilities. Hundreds of resorts are like that. What is needed is something that will make the moneyed traveler ignore those hundreds of average places and come to us for something special.

There must have been many ideas born and allowed to die because they were considered unsuitable, impractical or impossible. There's where the tourist people have a job on hand. Get together, bring out these ideas and discuss them. Who knows, something that was considered impossible might prove to be just the opposite when three or four or more minds start to work on it.

Unequal Penalties

Sometimes it is difficult for the public to believe that the ends of justice are always being served. We refer to recent motoring offenses.

A contrast was afforded recently here. A Nanaimo lawyer paid a fine of $20 and costs for speeding. Reported evidence was that his speed had reached 90 miles an hour.

About the same time a Duncan man was fined $25 and costs for failing to possess a valid driver's license. The young man was 21 only in November and had failed to change his minor's license.

Surely a warning in the case of the young man would have been enough. He had had no previous offenses. His error was largely an oversight. We cannot feel the same about the lawyer, particularly as from the nature of his profession a part of his income is derived from legal processes resulting from human error.

Good Service

Campbell River and District Chamber of Commerce executive has promised full support for an application of B.C. Airlines for a Class 3 license to serve this area. The chamber thus adds its voice to the growing list of organizations, logging companies and private individuals who are behind this firm in its application, which is now before the Air Transport Board.

B.C. Airlines has given excellent service to the Campbell River district, to say nothing of the coastal areas and islands to the north of us.

Difficult Decision

City officials have stressed that the increased assessment does not necessarily mean an increase in taxes, and this is quite correct, assuming that the city's budget can remain the same as last year. There are indications now, however, that the city will be forced to either increase its budget or drastically curtail its local works program. As the works program has been a matter of pride to every citizen, the council members will have a difficult decision to make.

Group Discounts

Groups of employees, by placing all or a large portion of their business with "discount stores," could jeopardize the stability of scores of other establishments which are either unable or unwilling to go along with those seeking discounts on everything from cheese and chalk to radios and ranges. Federal civil servants should realize, too, that some sections of the public will be forced to pay higher prices to make up for those discounts. In the final analysis, federal civil servants may have discounted the value of public relations more than the previously mentioned 20 per cent in this case.

Thinking Aloud

". . . of shoes—and ships—and sealing wax—of cabbages and kings."

By TOM TAYLOR

IF great men of the past ever stir in their abodes, and it would seem an unjust dispensation if some of them at least do not, it will be in wonder.

Napoleon, for instance, if perchance he peers in on the Royal Theatre, might have cause to think Josephine outclassed, although perhaps not. The boy who was 10 years old when the future emperor was born, however, has much more about which to be surprised.

Yes, despite that he told his faithful Jean he would be honored much more in death than in life.

But even Robert Burns, true prophet though he proved to be, could not have envisaged the world-wide celebrations being held this week in his name. Napoleon never heard of Burns but the bard knew of Napoleon, yet which of these two men arrest attention today?

It is the poet, not the great military commander.

That, for all the faith that life and liberty would some day be conjoined, and his own true worth acknowledged, might bring Robert Burns to open-eyed amaze.

* * *

One hopes the poet is not bereft of that amazement. It will bring recompense even if accompanied by rue at the irony of fate.

So many people, for one mundane example, will sit down this week at his table, to fare more bounteous than ever in his own ben the bard dreamed of.

In Victoria, in Singapore and San Francisco, in almost any place one might name.

Is there not cause in all this for our own wonder?

All last week, to his native shire, Burnsians converged in a new and more expansive homage than ever before, coming from all corners of the globe. An international Burns festival, of song and speech and pilgrimage of "howffs" and haunts, is at this moment under way. It is the planned pilot scheme of the 1959 bicentary of the Janwar' day when the wind blew hansel in on Robin.

Thoughts surely of his brotherhood of man will impinge as the poet notes the host, 2,000 and more of them, come to praise his name. He never left Scotland, but his fame has drawn this unique response.

If Napoleon can take his gaze from the Royal there is food for his mind also. And for him a different kind of irony.

* * *

Noteworthy among the pilgrims to Ayrshire are the four Soviet writers from Moscow. One of them is a translater of Burns and they will all be his familiars else they would not be there.

How mixed their feelinsg as they recite, perhaps, "shall brothers be for a' that," is perhaps unfair to question. They will not be alone if they pay what in essence is but lip service to a great man's inmost creed. Not many people carry Christmas beyond the prescribed period; not all Burnsians take unto the morrow the spirit of the bard they toast as immortal.

But Robert Burns himself, looking on, will nod not unkindly, knowing well of the frailty and fault of man, his own included.

One likes to think, however, that this fulcrum of a world-wide homage presages in company with the celebrations taking place in Victoria and elsewhere, a day yet to dawn of a kind to bless the memory of the man always valiant in hope of life and liberty become one.

Robert Burns. A name to be conjured with respect and humility. A genius wrought in glaur that his glory might shine for the multitudes who came after him.

Napoleon must wish they had changed places.

Era of Free Co-Operation

By W. N. EWER, from London

SIR Anthony Eden's coming visit, after the meeting of the Southeast Asia Defense Council in Bangkok, to a number of other Asian capitals is an event of symbolic importance.

Twenty years ago, indeed 10 years ago, such a visit by a British foreign secretary would have been out of the question. For it would have been pointless. Except for Persia, Siam and Iraq, all of Southern Asia was still under the rule of European powers. There were varying degrees of self-government; but international relations of all states were decided in London and Paris, the Hague and Lisbon.

Today, except for Malaya and the Portuguese territories in India, Southern Asia from the Levant to the Moluccas is composed of independent states. And had it not been for the Communists, Malaya would by now have been well on the way to independence.

This has been a major revolution in world affairs. And it is one in the bringing about of which Great Britain has played a leading role. First came the ending of the British protectorate over Egypt. Then in succession the renunciation of the Middle East "mandates," the granting of full independence to India, Pakistan, Ceylon and Burma, and of self-determination to the Sudan. Though Egypt and the Sudan are not in Asia, their story is part of the same evolution from "colonialism" to national independence.

So far as the British Empire is concerned, the whole of this vast change has come about with a minimum of armed conflict and bloodshed. Probably never in history has so great a revolution been achieved at so small a cost.

* * *

And in a way the visit of the British foreign secretary to these Asian capitals does sum up and symbolize the change and the new era of free co-operation. It is not quite the first visit. It was largely due to Ernest Bevin that the Commonwealth Conference (the first after Asian dominions came to full and equal partnership) was held in Colombo. Though already a sick man, he attended it as did Mr. Noel Baker, then secretary of state for Commonwealth relations. The co-operation between the free countries round what he called the "great arc" of the Indian Ocean was a major interest for him in the last years of his life.

It was out of that Conference that sprang the Colombo Plan, widened later to include other than Commonwealth countries, of which the twin bases are economic co-operation between the South Asian countries themselves and technical assistance to them by the United Kingdom and other Commonwealth states and the United States.

But Sir Anthony's is a wider tour. He goes to these Commonwealth capitals—Colombo, Delhi and Karachi, and to two non-Commonwealth capitals—Bangkok and Rangoon. He goes to Singapore; and outside Asia to Cairo on the way out. Part of the importance of the journey lies in its wide scope.

* * *

Except for the council meetings in Bangkok there are no normal agendas, no special matters for discussion, happily no disputes to be settled. The significance of the whole visit is precisely that the foreign secretary will not only be discussing with Asian ministers matters of direct concern to their own countries; he and they also will be consulting and exchanging views on a wide-spread range of world affairs.

At Bangkok there is of course definite business to be done. Formally the meeting will not, I suppose, be one of the Council of Ministers provided for in the treaty signed at Manila last September. For the process of ratification of that treaty has not been completed and the council has as yet no legal existence. But that makes no practical difference. The foreign ministers of the eight signatories will be there.

Their purpose: "To consider arrangements for the fulfilment of the provisions of the Manila Treaty and to exchange views on matters affecting the peace and security of the treaty area." The eight are the United Kingdom, the United States, France, Australia, New Zealand, Pakistan, Siam and the Philippines. The "area" is Southeast Asia and the West Pacific south of 21 degrees north latitude which, it may be noted, excludes Formosa.

* * *

The importance of this meeting lies chiefly in the fact that the Manila Treaty, while laying down general principles which pledge the signatories to joint action in the event of armed aggression in the area, and to consultation on defensive measures if any territory in the area is threatened in any other way than by armed attack, leaves to the council all "military or other planning" needed to make these principles effective.

So the Bangkok meeting has the big task of deciding on the shape and character of the eight-power organization which is to be created—of what, by analogy with NATO, is often called SEATO (the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization)—a handy, if unofficial word.

What form will the new permanent military organization take? Shall there be a permanent secretariat? These and other questions inevitably have political as well as organizational implications.

And the fact that Sir Anthony, immediately after whatever decisions are taken at Bangkok, will be visiting Burma, Ceylon and India—the three South Asian states which have declined to join the new organization—gives special and immediate importance to these points in his tour.

The Packsack

OF GREGORY CLARK

IF you have a cold, don't stay home merely on your own account. Stay home on account of everybody else. Infection from colds is no less virulent than in our grandmother's day, when public health measures and doctoring were far more primitive than now. It may be more virulent. We cannot help but be softer than our parents, because of the ease of our lives. Exercise used to be part of life's routine. The furnace had to be tended, ashes carried out, sifted. Many of our fathers and most of our grandfathers walked home from work, or walked a good part of the way. Today, we drive in the side drive, or the bus drops us off half a block from the house. Exercise nowadays is something we choose to take. Or leave.

Despite what the doctors say about our greater life expectancy and our better public health, most of us must be a beautiful bowl of chicken broth to a good healthy common-cold bug.

Whether the germ is more virulent may be a question. But the chances of a cold being more easily distributed are certainly greater today than ever before. In the first place, we circulate around more than ever before. Even if we have a cold, we feel it can do no harm to jump into a nice warm motor car and go visiting, or shopping. We have formed the habit of going places, and our first thought is for ourselves: will it do us any harm to go out? Maybe not. But it may do a lot of harm to others.

Buses, street cars and suburban trains are crowded as never in the past. During rush hours, ten of thousands of us breathe down one another's necks. One person with a cold could easily infect 10 or even 20 other persons in a crowded bus or car.

On New Year's Eve, a friend of ours with a very heavy cold visited us briefly. So far, we have traced 44 people among the family and contacts of those present that night who have carried on the cold. A wild guess would not even measure the actual spread of that one contact, all over the town and maybe far across the country.

Bloodshed in Russia

Twenty-five years ago the envoys of the great powers met in London to bargain for the size of their navies. Britain, France, the United States, Italy and Japan were busy trying to convince one another that their own respective navies should be large, but that navies in general should be smaller.

There was talk of banning the battleship and cutting down the size and number of naval armaments, in the cause of peace.

Dr. G. A. B. Hall was elected mayor of Nanaimo with a majority of 530 over Frank S. Cunliffe.

Electors of Oak Bay, by 701 votes to 488, decided in a plebiscite to grant the Veterans' Sightseeing & Transportation Company Limited (Blue Line) the exclusive right to run buses within the municipality.

Reeve William Crouch of Saanich had been re-elected with a large majority over his opponent, F. V. Hobbs.

Czar Nicholas of Russia narrowly escaped assassination as he was engaged in the religious rite of "blessing the waters" of the Neva River at strike-torn St. Petersburgh, 50 years ago.

The weapon was a gun in one of the emperor's own batteries of artillery. When a salute was fired, grape shot boomed through the windows of the Winter Palace. The gun had been left loaded with shot instead of being fired blank.

The city of St. Petersburg was on the verge of revolt. Two hundred thousand workmen were on strike.

The power plant was blacked out. All factories were idle. Workmen were refused permission to present their demands to the Czar.

On Jan. 22, bloody fighting broke out. Five hundred were killed. St. Petersburg was under martial law. Barricades arose. Bombs were thrown. Thirty thousand of the Emperor's crack troops were bivouacked in the streets.

Within a few days, the revolt was suppressed and St. Petersburg relatively quiet once more under a military governor.

Conservatives swept into power in Ontario. J. P. Whitney was to be the new premier.

Men often went armed in Victoria 35 years ago. A grand jury in January, 1860, viewed with alarm "the frequent display of deadly weapons by the Indians, which fact calls . . . for the barbarous practice of carrying arms by white men, and hence the rash use of them."

The grand jury also spoke harshly about the bad roads in Victoria and Esquimalt, and suggested that if the Hudson's Bay Co. owned the streets, as it claims to do, it repair the Fort Street crossing. The jury was alarmed at the storage of gunpowder in the company's fort.

Christmas Mail

May I, through you, extend to the people of Canada the very warm thanks of myself and other members of the post office staffs from coast to coast for the exceptional cooperation extended in the mailing of their Christmas cards and gifts.

More than ever before, the public showed its anxiety to assure early, with the result that the postal staffs were able to effect most Christmas deliveries in good time for the holiday.

The reports also indicate that the proportion of correctly addressed and well-packaged mail was higher than ever before although, as in the past, delays and difficulties were experienced as a result of failure on the part of some mailers to observe good mailing practices.

Much of the credit for the success achieved in our handling of the Christmas mails must, of course, go to the newspapers, who in many cases took great pains to remind the public of the advantages to be gained in observing the various mailing dates and in correctly addressing and packaging their mail. Needless to say, this assistance has been much appreciated.

Un-British

It was with a certain amount of pride that I read that our Island had not joined in the purging of Communists from our labor unions.

If men folk have a fault, it is in persisting in following a pattern, and anybody knowing the history of unionism is quite aware that not too long ago our own union leaders were forced to meet in secret places, and when discovered were thrown in jail.

So if society had succeeded in their efforts to suppress unionism, where would labor be today?

Instead of copying the principles of our neighbor to the south, it would be better if we took a few lessons from our own mother country, where free speech is advocated and practised, and where anyone including Communists are allowed to air their views, to whoever cares to stop and listen. And if England is unafraid of the onslaught of Communism on its people what has gone wrong with Canadians?

I have always been a great supporter of unions, but not when they do things I am ashamed of; in other words un-British.

Same for All

I was very pleased to see the Chamber of Commerce question the matter of discounts being given to our civil servants.

If any merchant is able to give 5 to 20 per cent discount to this or any other group they should extend the same favor to all their customers. Personally I don't think present-day competition allows such discounts to be legitimately given. The prices will be marked up and then discounts allowed, benefitting no one.

If this practice is allowed to go unchallenged it will give the general public the feeling they are being overcharged, and rightly so.

The remedy might be in insisting that the merchants names be published and the discounts they offer stated. This would then allow the public to boycott them, or demand the same courtesy discount.

Our civil servants should remember that their salaries are made possible by taxes paid by all merchants and others. They have the right to buy where they choose, but not the right to jointly induce any merchant or merchants to impair their livelihood by cutting their legitimate profit below the safety point.

TB Control

On behalf of the directors of this society and our Victoria committee, I write to express sincere thanks to the Victoria Colonist for the invaluable cooperation it gave the 1954 Christmas Seal Campaign, and to publicly thank the many thousand contributors in your area who helped make the campaign a success.

The determined fight against tuberculosis has produced encouraging results. In the last half-century in Canada, the death-rate per 100,000 has dropped from 200 to 13.

Hard and cold statistics defy complacency however. Tuberculosis still takes nearly 2,000 lives yearly in this country and last year more than 10,000 new cases were reported. Here in B.C. 1,500 are under treatment for the disease. The cost to Canada is $20,000,000 annually to hold tuberculosis in check.

The price of TB control is constant vigilance—an awareness made possible through education. May we repeat the words of Dr. Sir William Osler, one of the world's greatest teachers of medicine: "The battle against tuberculosis is not a doctor's affair; it belongs to the entire public."

Good Music Free

On Thursday night I very much enjoyed a fine program of recorded chamber music at the Victoria Public Library in the music room. I am, indeed, no musician, but to me the program was delightful, varied musical pieces of great interest, beauty, none too long. Whoever arranged this program deserves [illegible] his, or her, name might appear on the program.

The only disappointment was the small audience. A fine night and the music room only about half full, probably owing to a lack of publicity. Can we music lovers not do better than this?

Next meeting will be on Thursday, February 17 at 7.30 p.m. This is a civic enterprise which deserves the fullest support of all lovers of serious music, and its free!

Please, Gardeners

This is a plea from an animal lover to the hundreds of people who have compost heaps in this city and district.

Some people place food on the compost heaps, then place either a liquid or powder on the pile to help nature reduce the material to compost. If food is thrown on the pile, the pile should then be covered with either boards or some type of wire netting, as it is extremely poisonous to animals, who always seem to enjoy a little stolen plunder.

I am aware that pets should not be allowed on the loose at any time, but they do get away sometimes, with fatal results at times.

Many thanks for the privilege of being able to get in touch with all the folks who still have a place in their hearts for animals.

H. G. Wells remarked 30 years ago: "Socialism is applied Christianity."

There must be many of your readers who feel that communism might truthfully be described as socialism applied with a club.

Then surely it must appear to a good few in British Columbia that our police treatment of some of our Doukhobor fellow citizens in this school matter is very similar to what happens under Russian communism.

Also, it is certainly an extremely unpleasant duty and demoralizing experience for the fine young soldierly constables and police officers required to handle the situation.

They were recruited to deal with our criminals—not distracted parents and sensitive children.

Nineteen-year-old Irix Cosselin of Montreal won the distinction Friday night in a contest sponsored by a Montreal radio station.

Mrs. C. F. Doucet of Victoria was runner-up with her coiffure measuring 60½ inches.

Mrs. Eileen Silvester of Cordova Bay was close behind with hair 59 inches long.

First prize was $100.

The Car Corner

Torsion Bars Give Softest Ride Yet

BY J. T. JONES

The new Packard suspension is all they said it was—and more.

It makes this two-ton machine sail along with a sort of feathery feeling, with its wheels pattering on the bumps like a Liberace arpeggio.

The ride is flat, in the sports car sense, and there is negligible lean on even the sharp corners, but the ride is softer than anything else I've come across so far.

Right after driving the new Custom Clipper—at $5,345 the lowest-priced Packard with the new four-wheel torsion bar suspension explained here two weeks ago—I took out a lower-priced model with conventional springs. The difference was startling.

I think it's safe to call any Packard one of the better-riding cars, but after the torsion bar springs, the conventional set-up left much to be desired. It dived some in corners, settled back under acceleration and made the usual thumps and bumps going over the humps.

The conventional car felt like every ounce of its considerable weight, and gave much more impression of speed.

The more costly model has power steering, which left me somewhat in the dark as to just what the car was up to in any hard bends—I had a feeling the rear wheels were drifting (a perfectly acceptable thing), but I couldn't be sure.

There's good road feel on the straight with this car, but on turns it disappears—at least to a driver not familiar with the car.

Taking the two cars over the same course, I was looking for the answer to one question: Is the new suspension enough better than the old to be worth the effort and the price.

The answer, if you have the money, is yes.

I think we'll be seeing a lot of torsion bar suspensions in action next year.

* * *

Now for that whopping engine—245 horsepower in the Custom Clipper.

Combined with the new automatic transmission its massive torque has a spine-tingling effect. From a standing start to 60 miles an hour, according to factory figures, takes 12 seconds in low range. For the sedate set, the drive range takes a little longer.

* * *

There are some other points worth noting.

The interior finish is about as lush as it could get without lace curtains.

The wraparound windshield didn't make me dizzy, as others have.

The body lines have been trimmed down, getting away from the extreme boxiness that marred Packards of recent years, and giving spare lines that conceal the car's bulk.

There's a switch to shut off the suspension's fore-and-aft leveler motor, which will keep little boys from riding up and down on the back bumper while the car's parked—among other advantages.

Planning Completed For Music Festival

BY IAN MACDONALD

Plans have been completed for the fifth annual Greater Victoria Music Festival to be held march 16 to 19 and March 21 to 25.

First United, Metropolitan and St. John's Church halls have been engaged for the festival.

Folk dancing will be held at the Amphion Hall.

Several new classes have been arranged for this year's festival, which the committee hopes will attract more than the 1,000 competitors who entered last year.

Classes range from adult choral to band ensembles and instrumental solos and speech art selections.

Further information may be obtained by writing to Box 308, Greater Victoria Music Festival Association.

Heading the group this year is President Mrs. William Ellis, with Dudley Wickett as first vice-president.

Closing date for entries is February 5.

"Let Me Go, Lover," a rather plaintive ballad, is leading Victoria's top ten in popular music according to record sales and juke-box business.

In the other places are—2, "Teach Me Tonight"; 3, "Papa Loves Mambo"; 4, "Mr. Sandman"; 5, "Naught Lady of Shady Lane"; 6, "Count Your Blessings"; 7, "This Old House"; 8, "If I Give My Heart to You"; 9, "Mambo Italiano," and 10, "Make Yourself Comfortable."

Victoria, land of the shining sun and balmy breezes, looks as though it is becoming an excellent source of supply for ice show talent.

"This is the best we've had during the tour so far," said Vivi-Anne Hulten when about half-a-dozen young hopefuls showed up at the Ice Cycle auditions last week.

Seattle produced one aspiring skating star, said Miss Hulten, who trains and handles skaters for the show.

There were no immediate openings in the cast, but Miss Hulten said there are two or three promising prospects here, rival of last year's "Oedipus Cycles before the end of the tour or for next year's show.

Tax Violation Costs Furrier $1,500 Fine

Gordon Heather, a former Victoria furrier now living in Vancouver, was fined $1,500 in city court yesterday.

He pleaded guilty to a violation of the federal excise tax act.

Magistrate Henry C. Hall was told that the accused failed to pay taxes on fur pieces that he took in for repair or remodeling.

The accused was charged with filing false statements.

First World War Comrades Meet

Men who fired and serviced two 4.5 howitzers in the First World War gathered this week during a visit of one of their number, Rev. Allan G. McIntosh, for the past 27 years a missionary of the African Inland Mission in Belgian Congo.

The reunion of the veterans, who are among the survivors of the Right Section of the 58th Battery, CFA, was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Archie H. Wills, 1231 Fairfield Road.

Those who attended were Judge J. B. Clearihue and Dr. Arthur Chatwin, who, as lieutenants, were section commanders; Gordon A. Cameron, F. Scott Mason, John A. Hibberson and Archie Wills, who served as sergeants; Hayward C. Kinghorn and Harry E. Hunt, cororals; Dr. William A. Newton, Lieut.-Col. Robert D. Travis, MBE, and W. H. Robertson, bombardiers; Phil E. Brethour, shoeing-smith; Percy Gilson and George Lomas, gunners; Rev. Percy E. Wills, signaller, and Alfred Dowell and Ralph Crulkshanks, drivers. Dr. J. M. Fowler, who was medical officer of the unit also attended.

Mr. McIntosh, who was awarded the military medal for his gallantry in France, joined up in Victoria and left here with the unit 39 years ago. On return from service he resided in Vancouver.

He studied for the ministry and, after his marriage in Los Angeles, he and his bride accepted a mission post in the Belgian Congo. He has just finished his fourth furlough on this continent and is now heading back for the Congo.

New Ruling On Firearms Clarified

Royal Canadian Mounted Police yesterday clarified a ruling from Ottawa concerning registration of firearms.

Past announcements indicated that all registration certificates of firearms must be forwarded to Ottawa for re-registration.

RCMP said yesterday that only certificates issued prior to January 1, 1952 are required for new registration through the Commissioner, RCMP, Ottawa.

The new registration ruling affects revolvers, pistols and all fully automatic firearms.

FUNERAL NOTICE

Members of Pro Patria Branch, Canadian Legion, B.E.S.L. and the Ladies' Auxiliary are requested to attend the funeral of our late Comrade David Muir at McCall Bros' Funeral Chapel on Tuesday, January 25, 1955, at 1.30 p.m.

C. A. GILL,
Secretary.

Parley Reaches Stalemate

Electrical workers' union members at Yarrows Ltd. and Victoria Machinery Depot yesterday reiterated a request for continued negotiations on a new contract agreement.

Talks are now stalemated.

The International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (AFL-TLC) recently said it did not agree with a conciliation board which recommended a five-cent-an-hour increase spread over two years.

The two companies accepted the conciliation award.

Shipping Warned

Anti-aircraft firing practice will be carried out from the vicinity of Albert Head Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday of next week from 9 a.m. to 3.45 p.m. daily.

The army warns shipping to avoid that vicinity and says the danger altitude for aircraft is surface to 25,000 feet.

School Board Extends Duties Of Committees

DUNCAN—A system of three-man committees has greatly increased duties and powers of committees of School Board 65 (Cowichan) this year.

Building, management and transportation committees now have the power to hire and fire employees, and will also have authority to make necessary purchases.

Discharged employees will have recourse to a board of appeal.

The management committee will act on job applications from teachers, and will make recommendation to the board on employment and dismissals.

The building committee may recommend dismissals to the board, but the transportation committee may discharge employees summarily.

Members of the transportation committee, asking for this power, argued that when a bus driver proves incompetent he should not be allowed to make even one more trip.

PORT ALBERNI—This district has its eyes on the award offered by the Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce for the Vancouver Island group topping its blood donation quota by the greatest amount.

A two-day Red Cross blood clinic in Port Alberni last week netted 737 pints, well over the total for any former blood clinic. Last year the campaign realized 630 pints.

Port Alberni Jaycees publicized last week's drive and supplied transportation and baby-sitting services. They were jubilant at the result of the campaign.

In one 30-minute rush period more than 50 donors were "processed."

Assisting Red Cross workers were members of the Order of the Royal Purple; Canadian Legion, Branch 55, Women's Auxiliary; I.O.D.E.; Order of the Eastern Star; and St. Alban's Women's Auxiliary.

CAMPBELL RIVER—Gustav Ostensen, who will head Crown-Zellerbach operations at Antioch, Calif., when they begin in 1956, recently visited Crown-Zellerbach of Canada, Ltd., at Duncan Bay.

He toured the Elk Falls paper mill and was shown the kraft pulp mill now under construction.

The California mill will use 400 tons of pulp a day from the Elk Falls kraft mill, scheduled to be in operation by 1956.

Bids on Hospital Soon

CAMPBELL RIVER—Tenders will be called soon for a $1,000,000 hospital here.

Architects Underwood, Cameron and McKinley of Vancouver have designed the hospital for the Campbell River and District General Hospital Society. The design is said to be unique in Canada.

Trustees of the Campbell River Hospital Improvement District Friday made the first monetary advancement of $8,600 for the planning of the new hospital.

* * *

CAMPBELL RIVER—Frank Wolfe has been elected to his second term as president of the Campbell River Social Credit Association.

Nick Wyllychuk is vice-president and R. B. Hopton secretary-treasurer.

Samuel White, A. Elliott, Leonard Poulson and Mrs. Ila Dixon are executive members.

The Willow Point and Campbell River Social Credit groups have decided to amalgamate. Meetings will be held alternately in each district.

* * *

COBBLE HILL — R. B. Moulton, associated with the church since 1909, will continue as vicar's warden for St. John's Church at Cobble Hill.

Rev. Canon R. K. Sampson presided at the annual vestry meeting at which Donald Marrs was re-appointed people's warden.

On the church committee are Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Askham, Mrs. N. Bonner, Mrs. J. L. Caesar, C. A. Giesen, Miss L. Joyce, Col. and Mrs. H. T. Thuillier, Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Wolf, Mrs. G. Wass, Mr. and Mrs. H. Newton, C. Blake and L. Horton.

Delegates to the ruridecanal conference are Mrs. Caesar and Miss Joyce. Synod delegates are wardens, with A. R. Pearson and H. Savage as alternates.

Sidesmen are N. Bonner, C. Blake, and E. Wolf.

A committee to investigate proposed building of a parish hall includes J. W. Askham, C. A. Gliesen, D. Marrs, R. B. Moulton, E. Wolf, Mrs. N. Bonner, Mrs. A. Soulsby, Mr. and Mrs. H. Newton, Mrs. H. Parry, Mr. and Mrs. L. Horton, and Mrs. L. Sinclair.

GANGES—Dennis Baldwyn was re-elected president of the Salt Spring Island Canadian Legion Branch 92.

Other officers named were: W. F. Thorburn, first vice-president; George Heinekey, second vice-president; John Sturdy, secretary; D. Fyvie, treasurer; B. C. Greenhough, sergeant-at-arms; and A. R. Layard, Jack C. Smith, W. A. Trelford, Kenenth Fletcher, Roy Coleman, E. H. Newman, T. A. Burge, and V. L. Jackson, executive.

Mr. Baldwyn reported the branch had a very successful year and had paid off the bank loan on the Legion building.

Project this year will be to finish furnishing the hall and to construct an addition to the building.

Thanks were expressed to Colin F. Mouat for his help in the past year.

Unemployment Figures Misleading

CAMPBELL RIVER—The unemployment situation in B.C. presents a false picture, according to Herbert Bruch, MLA for Esquimalt, who spoke to Campbell River Social Crediters.

He said many retired people came to the province with a two-year unemployment insurance pay to draw and a lot of married women were only employed seasonally.

Coupled with this, unemployables drifted in from the East looking for work. It was significant, he said, that two out of every three persons convicted in Vancouver and sent to Oakalla were from the East.

These facts were the main cause for the high unemployment figures for the province, Mr. Bruch said.

CHEMAINUS—Cyril Randall Jarrett, the second Nanaimo man to enlist on the day the First World War was declared, died suddenly yesterday at Chemainus after a heart attack.

He was born January 5, 1891, at Woodbridge, Ont. He was assistant city engineer in Nanaimo from 1911 to 1914.

He joined the Seventh Battalion and went overseas early in the war. He was wounded twice in France and was sent home in 1916. In November, 1916, he went to Chemainus as sub-collector of customs, a post he held for 37 years.

He was past master of the AF & AM, Chemainus Lodge 114, and secretary for 10 years. He was a member of Dogwood Chapter, OES.

He was a member of the Rotary Club, for 27 years a Chemainus Hospital board director, for many years a director of the Chemainus Recreation Club, and a keen supporter of all sports.

Surviving are his widow, June; a son, David, at the Comox RCAF station; three brothers and three sisters.

Funeral services will be held Monday at 2 p.m. from the United Church at Chemainus.

Freedom Medal For Missionary

Youbou Boasts New Post Office

Small sawmill community of Youbou now boasts a new, attractive post office which was turned over to postal authorities by B.C. Forest Products recently. In the main lobby are D. A. Saunders, manager of Cowichan sawmill division; J. B. Gaunt, Vancouver Island postal inspector; J. R. Corney, Duncan postmaster, and W. H. Wilson, district director of postal services, Vancouver. Greeting the visitors is Ray Stokes, Youbou postmaster.

Community Reminded Of Duties to Youth By Health Minister

NANAIMO (CP)—Health Minister Eric Martin said here yesterday that time, money and effort spent on rehabilitation of delinquents will be in vain if the youngsters are rejected and spurned when they return to their community.

Mr. Martin was addressing 1,000 persons attending the opening of the new provincial school for boys at Brannan Lake, nine miles from here.

The buildings comprising the new school are on a 160-acre tract on the south shore of Brannan Lake. The institution can accommodate 150 boys.

Included in the self-contained institution are central cafeteria facilities, classrooms, industrial art shops, gymnasium and a small chapel.

The chapel, Mr. Martin said, is not "just a nod to God. Here for the first time boys will receive the spiritual guidance which has been denied them in their homes."

Mr. Martin said the school, built for slightly more than $1,000,000, was furnished throughout with Canadian-made furniture.

"Most of these boys have far more good in them than is generally conceded," said Mr. Martin. "Throughout their formative years the majority have been denied the love and understanding of a happy home.

"But the raw material of goodness is in each boy and it is the avowed ambition of the school staff to bring out this goodness. And success is found in the majority of cases," Mr. Martin concluded.

F. G. Hassard, veteran welfare branch official recently named superintendent of the Boys' Industrial School at Port Coquitlam, will head the new institution.

Attending the opening were Provincial Secretary W. D. Black, Trade Minister Ralph Chetwynd, Attorney-General Robert Bonner, Chief Justice Wendell B. Farris, Mayor George Muir of Nanaimo and C. W. Lunday, deputy minister of welfare, who presided at the ceremony.

Archbishop To Preside

Completion Near For All Saints

VIEW ROYAL—Completion of All Saints' Church here is expected next month. Archbishop Harold E. Sexton will dedicate the new church at that time.

A church committee meeting held recently decided not to hurry in acquiring church furnishings as it is hoped to have furniture of the best type to conform with the building itself.

For the interior furnishings light wood will predominate, the floor will be green cement, and the chancel and sanctuary will be finished in mahogany. Four offers of pews as memorials have been received.

The annual parishioners' meeting will be held January 27 in the community hall.

Canon S. J. Wickens, vicar, acted as chairman for the evening, and present were church wardens H. Vickery and E. Gee, Ald. G. I. Edgelow, Mrs. R. Ritchie, Mrs. R. J. R. Stephen, Miss C. D. Holmes; Hugh Knight, secretary; R. Rochfort, convener of building committee; Newton Campbell, Duncan D. McTavish, C. Jackman, C. A. Pope and Michael Pope.

Navy Electric Shops Will Open on Friday

A new electrical workshops building to house, under one roof, all electrical and electronic activities in the naval dockyard at Esquimalt, will be officially opened Friday.

Commodore W. H. G. Roger, electrical engineer-in-chief at Naval Headquarters, Ottawa, will officially open the new building. Ceremonies are scheduled for 3.15 p.m. and guests will include senior naval officers of the Pacific Command, dockyard departmental heads, and local industrial representatives.

Construction of the new building began in September, 1953. Cost of the building was more than $800,000.

Under the supervision of Commodore B. R. Spencer, superintendent of HMC Dockyard and Comamnder S. E. Paddon, manager of electrical engineering, all major electrical and electronic installations and repairs to HMC ships in the command will be carried out through the facilities of the new electrical workshops. This includes repairs to radio, radar, sonar, weapon control, motors, generators and intercom equipment. The establishment will be responsible for all electrical maintenance of naval shore establishments and repair and maintenace of power distributio and live communications in the command.

The ordeal of two freezing days spent on a rocky ledge high on Mount Arrowsmith is not over for Charles E. Faulkner, Jr., 936 Fullerton.

He will undergo an operation soon for a leg fracture suffered two months ago when he slid down an ice slope.

The young mountaineer was rescued by a 50-man rescue party.

Arbitration Board Told:

High School Students To Double by 1961

DUNCAN—Doubled school population in provincial high schools within the next six years was forecast at an arbitration board hearing yesterday.

J. G. Spragge, representing the Cowichan District Teachers' Association, made the statement when arguing in favor of increased principal's allowances as well as increments for secondary teachers.

The teachers are asking a 7-per-cent increase which would add $20,000 to the annual salary bill of $321,000.

TO ATTRACT RECRUITS

Mr. Spragge said the increases and increments were needed to attract recruits to teaching in view of the expected increase in pupils.

"Something should be done now to meet a situation before it becomes acute," Mr. Spragge told the board.

In rebuttal, D. R. Williams, representing Cowichan school board, said there had been no difficulty in obtaining teachers for the secondary school or the elementary schools in the district.

He thought the increase of pupils predicted by Mr. Spragge was pure speculation in view of figures he cited to show a "steady normal growth in Cowichan."

CAUGHT UNAWARES

Mr. Williams said he had been caught unawares by the request for increases in increments and principal's allowances.

The arbitration board therefore will allow him to submit a written argument next week and Mr. Spragge will be allowed to reply.

Most significant submission by Mr. Spragge at Friday's hearing came during his argument for a general 7-per-cent increase.

He said that of 14 salary schedules on Vancouver Island, 10 were higher and only four lower than the Cowichan secondary basic scale, while for the elementary basic scale nine were higher and five lower.

The secondary basic salary in Cowichan is $2,875 to $4,955. Lowest is Salt Spring, at present under negotiation, at $2,785 to $4,960 while the highest is Ucluelet-Tofino, $3,000 to $5,200.

Veteran of Two Wars To Be Buried Tuesday

Funeral services will be held at 1.30 p.m. Tuesday in McCalls' funeral home for David Muir, 67, of 842 Admirals Road, a resident of Victoria for 48 years and veteran of two world wars, who died Friday.

Mr. Muir served with the 15th Battalion of the 48th Canadian Highlanders in the First World War and with the Veterans' Guard during the Second World War. He was a member of the Pro Patria branch of the Canadian Legion for 25 years.

Survivors include his widow, Rose, at home; one daughter Mrs. Rose Stewart, Port Coquitlam, and one son, David, Victoria.

Rev. Douglas Pilkey will officiate at the services, which will be followed by cremation.

Hunch Pays Off

CHICAGO (UP)—Mrs. Lottie Puk, 25, had a hunch that the gun held by one of two bandits holding up her father's tavern was not loaded.

"You know, I don't believe that gun's loaded," she said—and grabbed the unarmed bandit who was scooping money out of the cash register while his partner covered Mrs. Puk.

The armed bandit became flustered and fled, and two customers helped Mrs. Puk subdue his partner and recover the $1,000 he had taken.

The captured robber, who identified himself as Fred Nelson, 40, complimented Mrs. Puk on her courage as police led him away.

"But you know," he said, "you were wrong. That gun was loaded."

Attorney-General Refuses Promises On Courtroom Bid

NANAIMO—Need for increased court facilities at Nanaimo has not been overlooked by the provincial government, Attorney-General Robert Bonner told a joint meeting of Nanaimo County Bar Association and Chamber of Commerce yesterday.

The subject was broached by Frank Cunliffe, QC, president of the bar association, who said lack of adequate courtroom facilities had been officially recognized in his places some years ago.

The government in power in 1952 had given assurance that work would be started on an addition to the courthouse that year. The work was not started and that same year the government in power was not returned, said Mr. Cunliffe.

After this, said Mr. Cunliffe, Premier W. A. C. Bennett had addressed a public meeting here and gave assurance that a new courthouse would be built in 1954.

NOT LIKELY

"The estimates for such an expenditure were not included in the 1954 budget and the minister of public works (P. A. Gaglardi) has told me they are not likely to be included in the budget for some time," he stated.

Mr. Bonner said there was increasing pressure on all facets of public administration. There were many places in the province, he stated, that were without facilities as good as Nanaimo's alleged inadequate ones.

Mr. Bonner said he would make no promises.

TORONTO (CP)—Mrs. Pauline Dickinson, an arthritic sufferer who is tied to a wheelchair, is busy from morning to night arranging baby-sitters for customers, and handling the business end of the agency.

TV NOTEBOOK

By Tommy Tomlinson

The year 1954 was a great success from the standpoint of the European picture. A rather bold experiment across the pond resulted in an international TV network called Eurovision, which is designed to promote a firmer bond of understanding between eight European nations.

Language difficulties are solved by commentary in the home studios which are guided by narration from the scene of the actual telecast. As a result, the participating nations hear only their own tongue spoken by a local commentator.

Eurovision is catching on in great style, although TV for the masses is still far off due in the main to the high cost of receivers. A 12-inch model, for example, sports a $180 price tag in England and $250 or better on the Continent. Over there, in case you're interested, folks pay an annual fee for TV entertainment which ranges from a $7 bite in Denmark to $20 in Italy. The programming is considerably less than we have come to expect, with approximately five hours weekly offered in Denmark and ranging to as much as 40-plus hours in England. At any rate, long strides are being taken, and the day may come when we may be able to hook onto the Eurovision network.

If you want to hook on to a real good TV buy, now is the time to pull in your line. Don't fish for bargains any longer! . . . Come directly to DELTA ELECTRIC. Your head will be swimming when you see the beautiful new Westinghouse and its sensible price tag! ***

Plane Berth Sought

CHEMAINUS (CP)—Chemainus and district chamber of commerce will ask the federal department of public works to consider an extension to the government wharf for a plane berth.

Pacific Western Airlines is prepared to make Chemainus a regular calling point, provided proper berthing facilities are available, president A. E. Beasley said.

PWA officials inspected the inner harbor and suggested a floating chain wharf addition, eliminating the need for new piles.

FARE INDICATED

Proposed fare between Chemainus and Vancouver is between $6 and $7.

The chamber will also ask the department for an extension of the present wharf to provide better facilities for boats.

Mr. Beasley was re-elected president for a second term. Other officers elected are George Hemminsen, vice-president; Frank Dyer, secretary; B. Shaw, treasurer; Mrs. R. McBride, Miss E. Work, C. G. Ford, J. Jameson, G. Gordon, B. Bennie and Jack McNulty, executive.

Chamber Approves Goodwill Tour Plan

Chamber of Commerce directors have approved the tourist trade group's proposals for a 1955 goodwill tour.

A five-day, 803-mile motor cavalcade to Washington State's Inland Empire is proposed.

The route would include a wide sweep through Washington, visiting cities with a combined population of 770,000.

All-inclusive cost of the tour will not exceed $100 per person and it is planned for early spring.

* * *

The tourist trade group of the Chamber of Commerce will approach the provincial government and local municipalities for financial support in the construction and erection of proposed sightseeing historical signs.

Chamber directors approved the project.

Approximate cost of each sign marker is $40. Metal plaques, mounted atop steel poles are proposed and will point out places of tourist interest.

* * *

The industrial group of the Chamber of Commerce is planning familiarization tours of Patricia Bay Airport and Harmac pulp mill at Nanaimo.

Group chafrman James McKeachie told chamber directors that main project this year will be to stimulate industrial affairs in the community by attempting to have municipal governments set aside industrial sites.

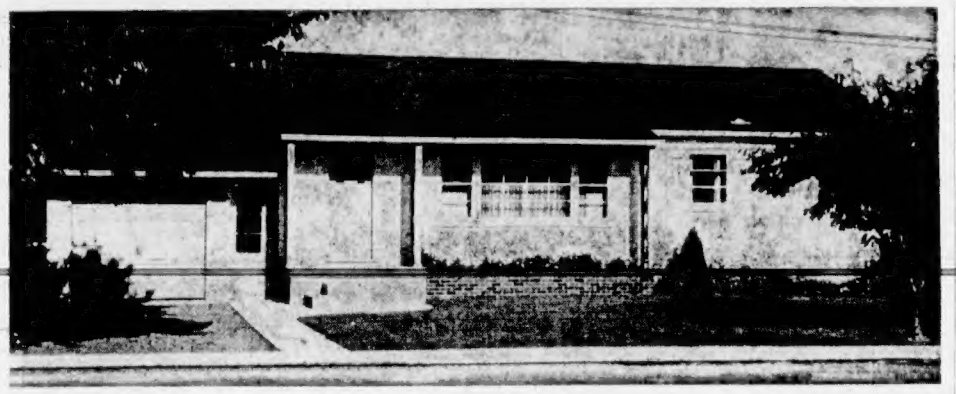
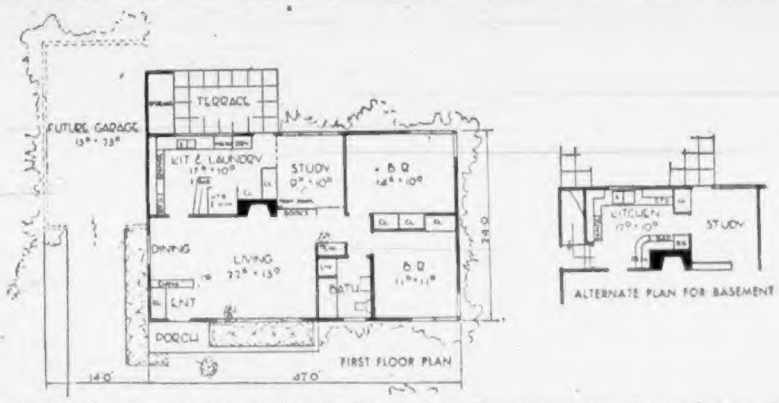
Preferred from Coast to Coast





Look familiar? There's a good chance it will, for of all the basic designs shown so far, this plan ranks first in popularity from coast to coast. Located in Grimsby, Ont., this example in gleaming white clapboard has a charm that cannot be denied. Simple roof lines speak for economy, and planning is strictly up-to-the-minute in convenience. Plans show an alternative arrangement if you desire a basement. Without basement the house contains 1,008 square feet or 11,340 cubic feet. Cubic content with basement is 18,350 cubic feet. (Inquiries about this plan may be addressed to Home Building in Canada, 2842 Bloor Street West, Toronto 18, Ont., referring to Plan No. 64-120.)

Hospitality Rooms Give 'Frowsty' Guests Chance To Primp Before Entering Party

Did you ever arrive at a party covered with melting snow, water on your oh-so-carefully-set hair and dripping from the end of your nose and generally feeling as "frowsty" as Cinderella's step-sisters? With a climate such as we "enjoy" in Canada, it is liable to happen to you at any time,—and it can happen to your guests on your party night, too.

That is why, according to the Canadian Institute of Plumbing and Heating, "hospitality" rooms which many people are installing on the groundfloor of their homes are gaining so much in popularity. These little rooms, which combine the facilities of cloakroom, powder room and lavatory, make guests welcome in a very practical way, by giving them privacy in which to "tittivate". They can then make their entrance to the party feeling, and looking, their best.

EVERYDAY BOON

Apart from the convenience to guests, of course, the powder-cloakroom is an everyday boon to the family as well. A room of this kind which she can use at any time of the day saves the housewife from a good deal of stair climbing. It's also a very useful place for the young fry to wash up in when they come in from play, and saves the trail of dirt upstairs to the bathroom which is the bane of every mother's existence.

Space for the powder room can be provided in many ways. Perhaps the house has a large clothes closet in the hall. Or the empty space under the stairway, which is usually wasted as an odd storage cupboard, can be put to better use as a powder room. Again, some older houses are equipped with butler's pantries, which the modern kitchen has made obsolete, and these are ideal for conversion to half-bathrooms, particularly as they are usually conveniently located for hooking up with the water system in the kitchen.

SMALL SPACE

As to size, while, of course, the larger the room is the more conveniences can be included in it, a powder room of this kind can be built into a surprisingly small space. For instance, if provision for hanging coats and hats is made elsewhere, a wash-basin and toilet can be put into a space no bigger than 5 ft. by 30 ins. These two fittings, plus a cabinet for cosmetic and adequate towel rails, comprise all the essentials.

If space is more ample, the ideal fitting is, of course, one of the counter-top type wash-basins, which is really a wash-basin built into a vanity. Together with a small stool, a wall mirror and adequate side lighting, it is the answer to a party guest's prayer.

Sometimes it is possible to find two adjacent cupboards, and then, of course, the ideal of a cloak-room and powder room combined can be achieved. But in any case, be sure that the essentials are there—facilities for washing, a toilet, space on counter top or cabinet for cosmetics, and ample light both overhead and for make-up purposes.

COST VARIES

While the cost of installation of a powder room varies according to the type of fittings used and the amount of work necessary to hook up fittings with the existing plumbing system, the entire job can usually be completed for a much lower figure than most people think. In this respect, it is wise to plan the powder room with an experienced plumbing and heating contractor at your elbow, so to speak. His advice will probably save a lot of money in advance.

Wine Firm Sale Listed

Sale of Growers' Wine Co., Ltd., has been reported confirmed by Adam and Co., Ltd., Vancouver investment dealers.

While the offer made by Vancouver interests to shareholders is open until January 31, the company said that owners of more than the minimum number of shares sought by the purchasing group have signified consent.

The offer of $4.90 a share was contingent upon acceptance by owners of 296,430 shares.

Adam and Co. said the offer was made by three Vancouver business men—Coley Hall, hotel owner and sports promoter, Francis Lumb, retired banker, and A. Donald Lauder, investment dealer.

The purchasers have until March 15, 1955, to make payment. Their plans will be announced at a later date when the transaction has been completed.

Bomb Warning Proves False

NEW YORK (AP)—A bomb scare at The New York Herald-Tribune Friday night sent police and newspaper employees searching the building for an hour, but no explosive was found. An unidentified man had telephoned the paper, saying "a bomb is going to go off in your building in two hours."

IT BEATS ME

By Jim Tang

In the face of decreased attendance in most other sports, the National Football League has managed to strengthen its position by smart use of television and clever promotion. The man most responsible is commissioner Bert Bell, a progressive, tough-minded type who is no yes-man for club owners. Last week, Bell came out with one of his most sensible recommenda- [illegible] after touchdown.

"Let's kick that extra point into the discard and make the touchdown count for seven points," Bell said. "In professional football, the conversion, as it is called, archaically, is virtually automatic. It lacks drama and excitement."

Automatic or not, the PAT is probably the silliest play in sport. It was primarily devised for the purpose of forestalling tie games, but what is so wrong about a tie game? It seems reasonable to presume that in any sport that a team which scores as often as it opponent is entitled to a tie, but in football a good team can lose to a mediocre one and an unbeaten season can go out the window on the vagaries of a bonus boot. It would make just as much sense if basketball awarded scorers a free throw after each field goal or if hockey gave a bonus for each goal if the goal-getter could shoot the puck through a stipulated opening. That would forestall ties, too. The Cougars, for instance, might have beaten the Edmonton Flyers last Tuesday by two goals and a conversion to two goals instead of settling for a split in points. Silly? Certainly, but so is the PAT.

Bell's suggestion that the PAT be abolished may not be accepted for next season but the pros will inevitably discard it. The figures for the past season show that 381 out of 400 touchdowns in league play were converted, which makes the PAT a useless play as well as one which doesn't make any sense. Those who argue for it say that it's part of the game but football rules are changed every year and there is no reason why they couldn't be changed in this respect with benefit to all. It makes sense to know in advance just how many points a touchdown is to count.

Hassle at the Goal-Mouth

Cameraman Jim Ryan was practically in the midst of this goal-mouth scramble when Tillicums scored their second goal of yesterday's Fred Oliver Memorial Cup soccer play at Beacon Hill Park, but he managed to get this picture seconds before the ball went into the goal. Don Paulin, hidden behind Jim McGee of Tillicums, extreme right, scored the goal that proved to be the winner in Tillicums' 2-1 victory over Wood 'Motors. Other players, left to right, are Murray Speller, Ron Pearce (5), Art Shambrooke and John Moss, all of Wood Motors, and Jim Harrison of Tillicums. Just after the goal was scored, a fight broke out between Speller and McGee, but peace was quickly restored and both players stayed in the game.

Last night's scores: VICTORIA 5 at Edmonton 3; Vancouver 6 at New Westminster 3; Calgary 5 at Saskatoon 2.
Next games: Tuesday: Vancouver at Calgary; Edmonton at Saskatoon.

Victoria Cougars continued to find the Edmonton Flyers the toughest to beat in the Western Hockey League and lost a chance to gain ground on Vancouver Canucks last night.

[illegible] Prairie trip, the Cougars were blanked, 3-0, before 4,800 Edmonton fans. They stayed eight points ahead of the fifth-place Canucks, but have played five extra games and have quite a battle on their hands if they are to make the post-season playdowns.

HOME WEDNESDAY

Cougars, who picked up three of a possible eight points on the rugged road trip, now return to Victoria for a game against New Westminster Royals on Wednesday and with six of their next eight games at home, have a chance to pick up lost ground. During the same period the Canucks play 12 games, seven of them on the road, including four games on the Prairies.

Beaten only once in their last 16 games, the Flyers got a two-goal jump in the first six minutes, scoring at 29 seconds and again at 5:17. They held the Cougars off from there, with some good help from goalie Glen Hall, then added their third goal in the last second of play.

Flyers now have won five and tied one of seven games against the Cougars, and with seven games in hand, lead the second-place Royals by five points. League records for the most victories and highest point total are well within the grasp of the speedy and well-balanced Edmontonians and they appear to be the class of the league.

ROOKIE SHINES

Norm Ullman, rookie centre who has been improving steadily and who looms as the most able rookie of the year, sparked the Edmonton attack by scoring the last two goals of the game. Bronco Horvath, league-leading scorer, who missed Tuesday's game because of a leg injury, played in the first two periods but had to miss the third.

The result gave Hall a firmer grip on league goaling honors, Marcel Pelletier of the Cougars was his nearest rival and Hall gained three goals last night. He now has a record of 2.86 goals allowed per game while Pelletier has 3.06. Last night's was only the second shutout of the season for Hall. Pelletier and Lucien Dechene of New Westminster each have five.

Victoria—Goal, Pelletier; defense, Durbano, Close; Keating, Dawes; R. Hucul; forwards, Marsolais, Repenton, Acmitrook, Anderson, Kuzma, Kilburn, Desjardins, Bray, Marquess.

Edmonton—Goal, Hall; defense, Zeidel, Allen; Hrymnak, Zemlak; forwards, Ullman, Poile, Schisler, Horvath, J. Buyck, Bjanskenow, Meinck, Hachinski, Davis.

Referee, George Cullen; linesman, Hack Wilson.

SUMMARY

First period—1, Edmonton, Poile (Schisler) 29 . . . 2, Edmonton, Ullman (Poile, Zeidel) 5:17. Penalties: Keating 4:41 and 13:58, Bjanskenow 15:58.

Second period—Scoring, none. Penalties: Durbano (major) 55, Zemlak (major) 55, Davis 11:46.

Third period—3, Edmonton, Ullman (Schisler) 19:59. Penalties: Close 4:48, Kilburn 9:34, Zeidel 13:07.

Horvath Retains Big Lead

Bronco Horvath, suffering from a leg injury and only able to play two periods of hockey last week, lost only one point of his Western Hockey League scoring lead.

The Edmonton centre stayed at 68 points but runner-up Guyle Fielder could only manage one assist to boost his total to 60, the same as Gerry Couture, who added three points during the week. Eddie Dorohoy of Victoria also picked up three points and, at 58 points, now shares fourth place.

Biggest gainers during the week were Eldie Kohussen, Ray Manson and Jackie McLeod, who play together on a Saskatoon line. The former two each got six points while McLeod got five.

Last night's scores: Chicago 3, at Montreal 5; Detroit 1 at Toronto 2; New York 2, at Boston 3.

Next games, tonight: Montreal at Chicago; Toronto at Detroit; Boston at New York.

Montreal Canadiens rushed back into the National Hockey League lead last night by trouncing the Chicago Black Hawks, 5-3, at Montreal while Toronto Maple Leafs snapped out of a slump to beat Detroit Red Wings, 3-1, at Toronto.

In the other game, Boston Bruins, who have three games in hand, boosted their margin over the fifth-place New York Rangers with a 3-1 triumph at Boston.

Led by their lower-scoring players, the Canadiens scored all of their goals in the first two periods, then held off against an all-out third-period Chicago attack that had the 14,300 fans suffering a bit with the jitters.

Dickie Moore scored twice for the winners and Floyd Curry and Tom Johnson each got one goal. The only one of the club's high scorers to get a goal was centre Ken Mosdell but Jean Beliveau set up Canadiens' first goal to take the scoring lead from teammate Boom Boom Geoffrion.

Beliveau now has 51 points, Geoffrion has 50 and Rocket Richard, who also picked up an assist, has 48.

Three goals during five minutes of the second period, two of them coming while the Hawks played shorthanded, decided the game.

After two scoreless periods of close-checking hockey at Toronto, the Maple Leafs broke loose for three goals in less than four minutes early in the final period. Leafs had been outplayed until Tod Sloan opened the scoring at 2:21, then swept on to score through Bob Solinger and Joe Klukay before Marcel Pronovost spoiled Harry Lumley's shutout. It was Solinger's first goal this season.

TED IN ACTION

Extra excitement was provided a capacity crowd by Ted Lindsay of the Wings, who went after a rinkside fan who grabbed Gordie Howe's stick during a mild melee along the boards while apparently attempting to protect a youngster. Both parties threw punches in a brief and harmless flurry.

There were only 9,197 fans on hand at Boston Gardens as Hal Laycoe broke a 1-1 tie with the winning goal at 5:15 of the second period. Lorne Ferguson got the insurance goal in the first minute of the third period. Earlier, Doug Mohns had given Boston a 1-0 lead and Dean Prentice had tied it up. It was the 12th goal for Prentice, six of them against the Bruins.

Royals Clip Canucks; Quakers Move Ahead

New Westminster Royals gave Victoria Cougars a needed boost last night and the Saskatoon Quakers gained a bit of ground in their almost hopeless battle to make the Western Hockey League playdowns.

Losers of four in a row to Vancouver Canucks, the Royals made a first-period goal by Ron Matthews stand up as they handed their cross-town rivals a 1-0 defeat before a packed arena of 5,000 fans at New Westminster.

Quakers, led by their potent Eldie Kobussen-Ray Manson-Jackie McLeod line, delighted 3,000 Saskatoon fans by handing the Calgary Stampeders a 7-5 beating. It was the second straight win for the Quakers, who are still 15 points out of fourth place and have only 23 games left in which to make up the deficit.

FIFTH SHUTOUT

Both clubs set a tremendous pace at New Westminster with the Royals full value for their win and fifth shutout of the season, all scored at the expense of the Canucks.

Ron Matthews got the goal at 11:52 of the first period on a three-way play with playing coach Max McNab and Ollie Dorohoy. Vancouver's George Ford was sitting out the second of two penalties at the time. Lucien Dechene stopped 18 shots while Johnny Bower in the Vancouver goal, handled 31 shots and was lucky on at least four occasions when shots hit the piping.

Referee Eddie Powers clamped down at the start, handing out five penalties in the first period, four to Canucks, and none the rest of the way. The bad feeling between the two clubs, caused by charges leveled against Vancouver defenseman Harry Dick by New Westminster owner Ken MacKenzie, showed only occasionally, but Dick was twice involved in a scuffle with a heckler. The fan was moved back two or three rows after Dick tossed a punch, but continued his heckling and Dick had to be held back by police as he made another attempt to get at his tormentor.

SCORING BOOST

Manson, who has played only 35 of his club's 47 games, continued his scoring surge at Saskatoon. He got the first three goals for the Quakers, set up the fourth, then scored the sixth. His four goals boosted his total to 23 and his five points boosted his point total to 40.

Stamps stayed close for two periods, although Saskatoon took 2-0, 3-1 and 5-2 leads, but two quick goals in the early part of the third period made it 7-3 and put it out of reach although Calgary came back to slice the margin in two.

Vancouver Grey Cup WIFU Bid This Year

CALGARY (CP)—Executive members of the Western Interprovincial Football Union were still talking behind closed doors here late Saturday.

Discussions ranged from the site of the 1955 Grey Cup game to the use of padded goalposts. The executive was reported to have drafted its first group of recommendations to the Canadian Rugby Union.

The WIFU will ask that the Grey Cup classic be played alternately in the East and West—beginning in Vancouver in 1955.

The import question has been stalled until today, although the WIFU has decided that whatever the Canadian Rugby Union rules this year will remain in effect for three years.

STUDY FINANCES

On gate receipts, the league is reported to have appointed one person from each of the five WIFU teams to investigate a system of balancing the league's financial standings. A system undertaken by the Big Four last week has been proposed.

The WIFU has decided that the team finishing first in the regular season will be allowed to chose the site for its first of the best-of-three playoffs.

League Commissioner G. Sydney Halter of Winnipeg has been appointed to investigate the use of padded steel goalposts.

The league has ruled that each team this year will make its own arrangements for pre-season exhibition games with eastern clubs.

INTERNATIONAL PROGRESS

In Philadelphia, Canadian and American professional football representatives Saturday reported "considerable progress" in ending their off-the-gridiron battle over star players.

Commissioner Bert Bell of the National Football League said after four hours of secret huddling with five members of the Canadian Big Four that "We have come a long way to burying the hatchet."

Ralph Cooper of Hamilton, Ont., president of the Big Four, was even more emphatic.

"We will come to an agreement, possibly within the next month or sooner. We want to. It is to our best interests."

Mainly, the dispute between the NFL—which has 12 teams spanning the U.S.—and the Canadian Rugby Union, with teams in Hamilton, Toronto, Montreal and Ottawa, concerns the raiding — or better, the signing — of players already under contract or option to a club in the other organization.

Bell said the player situation was not settled at yesterday's meeting, but "we are going to try to work out an amicable solution."

Trim Japanese XI

TOKYO (AP) — The Grasshoppers from Zurich, Switzerland, whipped the all-Japan soccer team 7-1 in a one-sided duel at Korakuen Stadium today.

The barnstorming Swiss outclassed, outran and outshot their opponents. The lone Japanese tally came on a penalty kick.

Halftime score was 3-1.

Student Teachers Keep Hoop Title

Normal School handed Victoria High its worst setback of the season at the Fernwood gym last night as the teachers trounced the Totems, 84-69, to win their second inter-scholastic basketball championship in three years and regain possession of the Times Trophy.

WINS TROPHY

Guard Dave Williamson, who sparked the winners to their second straight victory over Totems this season, was selected as the most valuable player in the two-day tourney and was also one of three Normal School players picked to the all-star team.

Victoria College Vikings, overcoming a 16-0 first-quarter deficit, took third place by downing Royal Road cadets, 58-45, in a rough game in which a total of 40 fouls were handed out by the referees.

Normal's sharp-passing attack and slick ball handling kept the Totems on the run although the winners trailed 21-19 after the first quarter.

BIG PERIOD

A 24-point outburst in the second quarter gave the winners a 43-37 lead at half-time but the Totems chopped three points off the deficit in the third quarter. Williamson, who scored 29 points, led a fourth-quarter drive by hooping 14 points.

Twitter Hill, who along with Williamson has seen action with Alberni Athletics, added 20 points while Waldo Skillings and Bob Tomlinson topped the losers with 17 and 16 points.

Royal Roads appeared on their way to an easy victory in the opener and held a 31-15 lead at half-time. But Gary Corbett sparked a great second-half rally for Vikings by getting 15 points as the winners poured in 43 points to the losers 14.

Hill and Al Snowsell were named to forward positions while the two other positions were filled by Tom English and Tomlinson, both of Totems.

Lineups follows:

Victoria College—Dave Price 6, Bill Harris 4, Bill Oldham 15, Mike Partridge 4, Gary Corbett 30, Colin Creighton 1, Glen Brewers 3, Bill Aschinsenbie 1. Total—58.

Royal Roads—Ron Binnie 20, Doug Brown 9, Pat Crofton 8, Jim Devaney 2, Tim Boley 8, Howard Wheatly, Dave Grimshaw, Fred Johnson, John Safai, Jim Wood, Dennis Leslie, Earl Law. Total—45.

Victoria High—Doug Jones 3, Tom Rausch 17, Bob Tomlinson 16, Waldo Skillings 17, Rud Rutherford 6, Don Perry 1, Ken McCullimore 3, Bill Abbott 4, Ed Kowalyk 6. Total—69.

Normal School—Don Hill 30, Pete Bolenchuck 5, Dave Williamson 29, Al Snowsell 11, Dave Worthy 4, Len Anderson 10, Barry Jackson 2, Pete Winter 2, Quod 1. Total—84.

Drakes Beaten at Nanaimo As Clippers Extend Lead

Last night's score, Drake Hotel 2 at Nanaimo 5.

Next games, Friday: Drake Hotel vs. C & C Taxi; Navy vs. Nanaimo, Memorial Arena.

Nanaimo Clippers maintained their undefeated record on home ice last night by trimming Drake Hotel, 5-2, in a scrambly Vancouver Island Amateur Hockey League game at the up-Island centre.

The Clippers, who stretched their lead over the idle C & C Taxi squad, held a 2-1 lead at the end of the first period and rammed in two unanswered goals in the second frame.

Drakes' goalie Don Hamilton was responsible for keeping the score within reason as he made 41 saves, many of them spectacular. Walt Davis, although not as busy, also played a solid game between the post for Clippers.

Earl Robinson, Bud Dumont, Joe Zuback, Mel Gordeau and Smith were the Nanaimo marksmen and Les Corby and John Makowsky scored for Drakes.

No games are scheduled at Memorial Arena Monday night, but the teams return to action Friday at the arena when C & C Taxi meets Drakes in the opener at 7:30, and Navy clashes with Nanaimo at 9.

First period—1, Nanaimo, Robinson (Yesowich, Furlan) 12:05. 2, Nanaimo, Dumont (Zuback, Carr) 18:20. 3, Drakes, Makowsky (Kowalyk) 19:55. Penalties, Harris 13:36, McPherson (10-min. misconduct) 19:36.

Second period—4, Nanaimo, Zuback (Smith) 7:49. 5, Nanaimo, Gordeau (Robinson) 10:43. Penalties, Gill 9:00, L. Pieraky 12:25, Milburn 14:56, Dumont 16:06.

Third period—6, Nanaimo, Smith (Yesowich, Gordeau) 4:30. 7, Drakes, Corby (Carey, Lawrence) 11:38. Penalties, Davis 1:27, Coulter (10-min. misconduct) 3:25, McPherson 3:25, Bamsrough 5:19, Robinson (10-min. misconduct) 8:20.

Globetrotters Still Unbeaten

PORT ALBERNI (CP)—Harlem Globetrotters kept their unbeaten string intact before another capacity crowd here Saturday night by downing the Boston Whirlwinds 43-33 in a game occasionally interrupted by the clowning that has become a Trotter trademark.

In two short preliminaries, the B.C. champion Alberni Athletics lost to the Boston Whirlwinds, 39-35. Globetrotters, who beat Alberni 45-27 in another preliminary, move to Victoria Monday night.

Golf Buttons At Stake Today

Bill Court and Laurie Kerr of Colwood will make their first defense of the city senior golf buttons at the Victoria Golf Club at 12:30 today.

Providing the opposition for the Colwood pair, who wrested the lapel decorations from Bob Morrison and Frank Scroggs last Sunday, will be Gordon Verley and Laurie Carroll of the host club.

Argos Seek Younger

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Tank Younger, star fullback of Los Angeles Rams, says he will fly to Toronto Sunday to discuss an offer from the Big Four Toronto Argonauts.

Younger told owner Dan Reeves he would not commit himself on the Toronto football offer until he returns and discusses it with Reeves.

Cerda Shoots Record 61 To Take Lead

KINGSTON, Jamaica (UP)—Antonio Cerda of Argentina set a competitive course record of seven-under par 61 for the Constant Spring course Saturday to assume a four-stroke lead at the halfway point of the Jamaica open golf championship.

Cerda, winner of the recent Panama Open tournament, had a 36-hole total of 132 strokes. His countryman, Roberto Devicenzo, shot a 63 and was runnerup after the second round with a 136 total.

Larry Edwards of Canada, who led yesterday's opening round with a 68, soared to 75 today and dropped back in the field. Lou Cummings, another Canadian pro, shot a second round 69 to go with his first round 79.

Babe Clings To Slim Lead In Tampa Golf

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—Babe Zaharias piled up an early lead Saturday, then got in trouble and barely clung on for a one-stroke margin over Louise Suggs after three rounds of the $5,000 Tampa Women's Open Golf Tournament. Mrs. Zaharias has 221 to 222 for the Cincinnati pro.

The two old rivals started the day all even at 146, but the Babe soon stepped out in front.

Mrs. Zaharias toured the front nine in 34, three under par, to go five strokes in front of Miss Suggs, who shot 39.

She increased her advantage to seven strokes after 12 holes, but then she got wild on her drives and approach shots and began missing her putts. She finished with a second-round 41 for a day's total of 75, even par for the 6,207-yard Palma CCIA course.

Miss Suggs, playing steadily, came home in 37 for a 76.

Beverly Hanson of Indio, Calif., pulled up to a tie with Miss Suggs at 222 by shooting the day's best round, 71.

The TACKLE BOX

BY JIM TANG

ANGLERS MEET MONDAY: Annual meeting of the Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association is scheduled for the upper ballroom of the Club Sirocco on Monday night, starting at 8, and all members should make it a point to be on hand if at all possible.

Election of officers is the most important item on the agenda but there are also the 1954 reports by committee chairmen, presentation of trophies won last year, and recommendations for this year, particularly in regard to the staging of the annual derbies. The committee is advocating two fish-offs for the annual ladder derby, one for qualifiers and the other for everyone who weighed in a salmon and failed to place on a weekly rung. This is the time to have your say over the method of staging derbies and failure to attend means there is no right to gripe after matters have been decided.

In addition, remarks of the guest speaker, H. E. Palmer, district supervisor of the Federal Fisheries Department, should prove interesting to every salmon fisherman.

* * *

HARD TO LURE: Fishing reports from Saanich Inlet boathouses are all the same. Plenty of fish are showing but they aren't taking anything a fellow might have in his tackle box and worthwhile catches have been few and far between. However, there is some encouragement in the report that blueback fishing in the Crofton area has been good and that there are plenty of dogfish in the Inlet. More often than not, dogfish precede salmon as they appear to be the first to discover concentrations of feed and more than one boathouse owner has discovered the salmon are often only a few days behind these nuisances.

For steelhead fishermen, Duncan's Bucky Kennett reports that the Cowichan River is in excellent condition and that fishing is "fairly good!" He also said that there was evidence of a new run and that the upper reaches may provide some good fishing this week. The cherry bobber, "hairy" cluster and the salmon-egg (fluorescent) fly have been top lures . . .

* * *

RANDOM CASTS: Three Vancouver anglers, F. Heffner, E. Norman and J. Donaver, enjoyed some exceptional steelheading in the Little Qualicum River last week with eight fish between 12 and 18 pounds . . . the Little Qualicum also gave up 24 and 25-pounders to unidentified anglers and a 22-pounder to Joe Bush of Vancouver . . . Tee spoons were used by the lucky trio above but dew worms, cherry bobbers and the gob fly have all been good . . . both the Little and Big Qualicum have been consistently good with fine fishing for sea-run cutthroat in addition to the steelies. The trout have been showing a marked preference for spinner and worm . . . Washington State will consider a recommendation that the steelhead be adopted as the state fish, and there is something in the claim that Washington has the best steelhead fishing there is. Its planting program has been a phenomenal success . . . California will think over a recommendation that anglers be called on to wear their licenses exposed. It has been estimated that as many as 90,000 Californians don't bother to buy a license and it's felt that if an angler had to keep his in an exposed place (probably on his jacket) that the state would get considerably more license revenue . . . Ontario has abolished the family fishing license for non-residents, who must now pay $6.50 each for the privilege with the proviso that children under 17 years of age can fish under the license of one of their parents . . . Ontario has also adopted a new system of measuring game fish. It's now from the tip of the tail instead of the fork. At the same time, the legal length for black bass was raised from 10 inches to 11.

Visiting Beauties Admire Spiel Prizes

Providing a perfect setting for the display of rich prizes which will be offered by the Victoria Curling Club for its third annual bonspiel are two Ice Cycles beauties—Margaret Fielding, left, and two-time world champion Aja Zanova. Bonspiel officials expect about 80 rinks will be competing in six events and entries have been coming in steadily the past two weeks for the week-long 'spiel.

Bolt Keeps San Diego Lead; Leonard Shares Third Place

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—Fireball Tommy Bolt played even par 72 Saturday for a 54-hole total of 203 and marched into the final round of the $15,000 San Diego Open Golf Tournament with a lead of three strokes over the field.

The 34-year-old professional from Houston failed to break par for the first time in three days, but his par round was still good enough to hold command of the situation.

Jack Burke, Jr., with a 68, came up from the rear ranks to take second place, at 206.

LEONARD IN TIE

Johnny Palmer with a 68, and Stan Leonard of Vancouver with a 72, landed together in the 207 position.

The biggest surprise of the day, and a crushing blow to the huge gallery, was the performance of the home-town pride and joy, Gene Littler.

The pre-tournament favorite and the man rated to have the best chance of overhauling the free-wheeling Bolt, Littler helped himself to a 73. It gave him a total of 208 strokes and shoved him back to fifth place.

Slender, youthful Bud Holscher, a newcomer to the tough tournament trail, added a 72 to previous rounds of 68-70 for a total of 209, while Fred Haas, Jr., with a 70, and Ted Kroll, with a 71, were tied at 210.

Bolt, who toured the flat Mission Valley Country Club's 6,706-yard, par 36-36—72 in 64 strokes in the first round, and added a nice 67 Friday, began the day with a four-stroke lead over Littler and Leonard.

PRESSURE TELLS

Bolt made the first nine holes in 35, and then the presure, or perhaps it was the obviously-biased Littler galleries, began to tell. He got another birdie on the 11th, but took successive bogeys on the 16th and 17th.

Coming up to the crowded 18th, Bolt was wide for the second straight day reaching up for an easy putt and escaped further damage.

Bolt won the San Diego Open two years ago, and will be hard to beat today.

Burke, who hardly figured in the speculations beforehand, and little more despite his pair of 69s for the first two rounds, may be tough to stand off. Burke didn't win a tournament in 1954, but he was the country's second leading money winner.

Palmer posed a real challenge [illegible] 32, which included an eagle on the third hole.

National Open champion Ed Furgol took a 75 for 215, and a former National Open winner, Dr. Cary Middlecoff, who won the Bing Crosby 54-holer last Sunday, had a 73 for 214.

Potent Mainlanders Romp Over Venture

Peter Tynan came up with a brilliant display for St. George's "A" team yesterday as he accounted for all but three points in leading the Mainland school to a 21-0 victory over HMCS Venture in an exhibition rugby match at HMCS Naden grounds.

The Venture cadets, newcomers to Victoria rugby circles, gained some consolation when their "B" team romped to a 16-6 victory over powerful St. George's in the other exhibition match played between the two schools.

FOUR FOR TYNAN

Tynan was practically a one-man team as he scored four tries and added three converts against the outclassed but scrappy cadets. Thor Young scored the other try.

Glen Christianson, Willie Little, Jim Todd and Wel Jardine were the Venture scorers in the "B" clash while Ken Sumanik had two converts for the winners.

In an exhibition match between JBAA's first and second division team, the Oarsmen's first squad rolled to a 23-6 victory at Macdonald Park.

George Wilson, Keith MacDonald and Dave Cooke led the way for the winners, who led 9-3 at half-time, with two tries apiece. Harry Turner crossed the line once and Pete Turko added a convert while John Whan and Gordie Gordienko scored tries for the losers.

In a second division match, Victoria College opened second-half play with an 15-0 victory over Oak Bay Wanderers at Windsor Park. The Wanderers played the entire match with only 12 players.

Dockers Quelled By Heaney Rally

HOW THEY STAND

JBAA	14	7	7	0	22	33	10
Victoria West	14	1	10	3	26	41	5

Saturday's score: Heaneys 3, Esquimalt 2.

Next game, today: Victoria West vs. JBAA, Heywood Avenue Park, 2 p.m.

Heaneys, showing their heels to the three other clubs in the Victoria and District Football League's first division, continued their blistering pace yesterday as they rammed in three goals in the second half for a 3-2 victory over second-place Esquimalt.

It was the Cartagemen's 13th victory in 16 games this season and gave them a commanding 11-point lead over the Dockers. Victoria West and JBAA provide the first division action today at Heywood Avenue Park at 2.

In Fred Oliver Memorial Cup competition for second division teams, Tillicums posted their third straight victory in the series by edging Wood Motors, 2-1, at Beacon Hill Park.

Slippery turf and a heavy ball hampered play at Royal Athletic Park but it didn't stop Heaneys' attack, which proved superior in front of the goal. Dockers carried an edge throughout but several good chances fizzled through poor shooting and errant passing.

Playing with a slight wind at their backs, Dockers got the only goal of the first half when Jack Blevins found the mark.

Six minutes into the second half, Stan Wiseman tied it up when he took advantage of a mis-kick by a Heaney defender and drove home a grass-cutter, but Esquimalt again took the lead on a goal by Denny Shubrooke. Heaney goalie George Murphy, watching a rushing Esquimalt forward instead of the ball, dropped the ball and Shubrooke was right there to tap it into the goal.

SCORES WINNER

Veteran Arnie Ferguson took over for the winners, getting the equalizer when he headed past goalie Gene Pedneault and supplying the winner after Pedneault and an Esquimalt full-back had stopped several shots from point-blank range.

Tillicums handed Wood Motors their first defeat in three cup starts but the Motormen are still in the running in the competition. Teams losing two games are automatically eliminated from further play.

Tillicums ran up a 2-0 lead in the first half but it took an outstanding display in goal by Al Davies to stave off a Wood Motor rally in the final session. Davies made several great saves and probably preserved the victory when he managed to block a penalty shot taken by John Wheldon in the final five minutes of play.

IN FROM SCRAMBLE

Lyle Hollingsworth opened the scoring after 10 minutes of play and right half Don Paulin netted what proved to be the winner from a goal-mouth scramble at the 35-minute mark. Archie Taylor put the losers close midway through the second half when his well-hit drive from 18 yards out deflected into the net off a Tillicum defender.

Canadian Scottish, who have chalked up two straight victories, and Butlers tangle in a cup match at Lower Beacon Hill Park today at 2. A defeat for Butlers would eliminate them and leave four of the eight teams still in the running.

Writ for Character Defamation Threatened Against MacKenzie

VANCOUVER (CP) — A writ for defamation of character will be issued against Ken MacKenzie unless the owner of the New Westminster Royals apologizes to Vancouver Canucks' defenseman Harry Dick, a spokesman for the Vancouver club said yesterday.

MacKenzie said in press and radio reports that Dick was "the dirtiest player I've ever seen, and a dirty coward."

The owner of the Western Hockey League team was referring to a mid-ice clash between Dick and New Westminster's Jim Zarie, in which Zarie suffered a serious knee injury.

REFEREES, TOO

"In accusing Dick of a deliberate attempt to injure Jim Zarie," Coley Hall said, "MacKenzie is criticizing the referees, in an offhand manner. We have a league rule against that which carries an automatic $200 fine, and I'm going to ask (Al) Leader (president of the WHL) for his interpretation of MacKenzie's statements."

"I've been called a lot of things in my years in hockey," Dick said Friday night, "but never a coward."

MacKenzie said, "I have no apology to make. Dick will wait a long time before I make any retraction of what I've said."

If the writ is issued, Hall said, he would "gladly pay all the bills."

Yesterday's score: Vancouver City 5, St. Andrews 3.

VANCOUVER (CP) — John Clifford rapped in three goals to lead Vancouver City to a 5-3 victory over St. Andrews in Pacific Coast League soccer play Saturday.

The win broke a three-way tie and allowed City to take over undisputed possession of second place.

City took a 2-0 lead at the half on goals by Tom McHugh and Clifford.

When play resumed Clifford banged in two more goals within 10 minutes before John Swan got one back for St. Andrews. Stu Crossan drove home another for St. Andrews and Swan made it 4-3 on a successful penalty shot.

Tom McHugh booted another goal for City with five minutes of play remaining.

Vancouver Reps, Varsity In McKechnie Cup Final

VICTORIA	3	0	3	0	12	32	0

Yesterday's score: UBC 24, Norwests 6.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver Reps and Varsity will meet in the final game of the 1954-55 McKechnie Cup English rugby schedule February 5 with two wins each in as many starts, and the winner will thus carry off the historic piece of silverware which Vancouver took last season.

Varsity Saturday rode roughshod over Norwests at UBC Stadium, scoring three goals (a try and two penalty goals to a try and a penalty goal) to win 24-6.

For 60 minutes the game was close and the result might have gone either way. At that time Norwests were leading, 6-3, then a faulty pass when they were actually on the attack paved the way for a Varsity try, and after that the Thunderbirds never looked back, scoring almost at will in the last 15 minutes of a dull game.

Two spectacular tries by speedy John Newton, both of which entailed runs of 70 yards, and the magnificent kicking of Dave Morley highlighted the match.

Cockell-Marciano Seen as Big Draw

SAN FRANCISCO (UP)—Promoter Jimmy Murray said yesterday he believes English heavyweight champion Don Cockell would draw well in Murray's proposed Cockell-Rocky Marciano "$1,000,000" title bout in San Francisco because the "international flavor" of the champion "naturally would be the feature attraction."

Asked if Cockell was the fighter Al Weill, Marciano's manager, would most likely name for the champ's next opponent, Murray said, "right now he is the man. That definitely will be the next match."

Murray, who is awaiting word from Weill to fly to New York for negotiations with the Marciano camp and the International Boxing Club, which has the rights to the heavyweight king, said the proposed fight would draw well in the west.

"It would be a novelty out here. Back east, heavyweight championship fights are old stuff," Murray said.

"As the centre of the Bay area's large population and the home of a big Italian colony, San Francisco is the logical spot for the fight."

Murray, who appeared certain he could come to terms with Weill, said the fight would be held "the latter part of April or early in May" in the city's Kezar Stadium.

He said he would scale the seats from an estimated top of "$40 or $50" for ringside. Kezar will accommodate approximately 85,000 for boxing.

Billy Wilson, star end for San Francisco '49ers, has signed a contract for his fifth year with the National Football League team, squelshing reports he would line up with a Canadian club this season.

Eagles Lead Division III With 2-0 Win Over Scots

First-half champion Eagles took over the lead in the Lower Island Junior and Juvenile Football Association's Division III yesterday by scoring a smart 2-0 victory over Canadian Scottish at Lansdowne Park.

Eagles' first goal came on a penalty shot while Jim Galbraith added the clincher midway through the second half.

Sidney moved into the lead in Division IV by winning by default from Victoria West. The suburbanite team has a victory and two ties in three matches.

In the other Division IV match, Canadian Scottish moved into a second-place tie with Combines by battling to a 1-1 draw with Eagles. Daryl McIntyre gave Eagles an early lead but Ron Gibson got the equalizer on a brilliant effort.

FIGHT TO DRAW

Combines held their lead in Division V by gaining a 2-2 deadlock with first-half champion Eagles. Hal Pitton put Eagles into the lead but Paul Stebeck tallied twice to give Combines a 2-1 edge at half-time. Doug Fieldhouse tied it up midway through the final half.

League officials said yesterday that all clubs must file entries for the British Columbia playdowns by January 31, and for the local knockout competition by February 15.

Curtis Wins In Main Event

The Victoria Wrestling Commission stepped in and reversed the referee's decision last night, disqualifying Mr. X in his main event bout with Buddy Curtis.

Curtis took the first fall but referee Gordie Gordienko gave the decision to Mr. X when he put Curtis out of commission with some illegal tactics. However, the commission named Curtis the winner and the grapplers have been rematched next Thursday.

Gerry Woods defeated Bud Ruttal in the semi-main, and Mike Belton defeated Dave Pye in a referee battle which opened the regular weekly professional card.

Wolverhampton Wins Despite Wet Grounds

LONDON — For the second week in a row the weather played havoc with the British soccer program Saturday with 27 of 62 scheduled games postponed, including 16 in England.

Last Saturday snowstorms and ice-coated playing fields forced postponement of 42 games and yesterday's program was disrupted by a thaw that left many soccer pitches looking like small lakes.

However, Wolverhampton Wanderers, the defending First Division champions, didn't let the weather conditions bother them as they took over the lead on goal average by defeating Charlton, 3-1, on the strength of three second-half goals.

The Wolves, strengthened by the return of their right wing pair, Johnny Hancocks and Peter Broadbent, took some time to settle down on the heavy pitch as they gained their first victory in five games at Charlton.

Sunderland, the only first division team undefeated on its home ground, had a tough time in preserving its record as it battled to a 2-2 tie against Portsmouth to share first place with the Wanderers in the point standings.

Manchester United took undisputed possession of third place by playing to a 1-1 tie with Bolton while Manchester City moved into a five-team tie for fourth place with a 2-0 victory at Chelsea.

At Arena Monday

Former star of Rio Grande College and holder of several United States small college scoring records, six-foot, seven-inch Bevo Francis has had no trouble adjusting himself to professional basketball and the lanky centre will lead Boston Whirlwinds against Harlem Globetrotters in the feature of an outstanding basketball card at Memorial Arena Monday night. Pre-midget teams from First United will play exhibition game at 7, and Victoria Individuals will provide the opposition for both Whirlwinds and Globetrotters in two 15-minute games. Two touring clubs will hook up in a regulation-length game following the opening contests. Shown above with Francis is Boston coach Newt Oliver, who followed the centre from Rio Grande to the Whirlwinds this season.

Send the Best, Urges Canadien Coach

MONTREAL (CP) — Dick Irvin, coach of Montreal Canadiens, said Saturday the National Hockey League should do something to "uphold Canada's prestige" in the world hockey championship series in Europe this winter.

"If the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association doesn't want to send the strongest team, then the NHL should. We have to prove to the Russians in particular that we are really tops in hockey."

Irvin went as far as to suggest that two players from each of the three top NHL teams should be named.

They could have substitution help from the Penticton Vs, already named as Canada's representative by the CAHA.

Irvin suggested the NHL contingent include Harry Lumley, goal, and Sid Smith, left wing, Jo Toronto Maple Leafs; Red Kelly, defense, and Gordie Howe, right wing, Retroit Red Wings; and Doug Harvey, defense, and Jean Beliveau, centre, Montreal Canadiens.

"They are all clean players. They don't get many penalties in the NHL and could play the type of hockey demanded at those games. I wouldn't suggest Rocket Richard. He might start another war.

"We as Canadians owe it to the public to send our top team. We should get strength from Penticton. I don't think too much of that team's chances as at present constituted."

Irvin said the team wouldn't have to be amateurs, as at the Olympic Games, and "we should be doing something along this line because the Russians, who won last year, are really preparing for this series."

NHL president Clarence Campbell had other views on eligibility, saying NHL players wouldn't be eligible.

"The players have to be amateurs under regulations of the International Ice Hockey Federation," he said. "This is not an open championship."

Irvin suggested the NHL players be reinstated as amateurs by the CAHA, if there were difficulties about their present status.

"The Penticton team has former NHL players, now reinstated," said Irvin. "Why couldn't we reinstate our players for a few weeks?"

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) —Doug Grimston, immediate past president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, termed a "cheap publicity stunt" the suggestion that NHL stars bolster Canada's world hockey cup contender.

Grimston said "Penticton Vs will represent Canada and there will be no additions from the National Hockey League."

Mulloy Suspended For Rule Violations

BY WILL GRIMSLEY

NEW YORK (AP)—The veteran Gardnar Mulloy was handed a suspension for amteur violations Saturday and the Pacific Coast took a dominant role in the annual meeting of the United States Lawn Tennis Association.

Mulloy was set down until March 24 for practices in a Miami tennis tournament last February. He was accused of paying some contestants more than the promised fee while cutting others below the expenses promised.

These were other major developments:

1. The West Coast delegation showed unexpected voting strength and forced a change in the proposed date of the national tennis championships at Forest Hills, making them run consecutively with the Davis Cup challenge round tentatively set for August 26 to 28. The dates are August 29 to September 5.

2. San Francisco bid for and got the 1956 meeting of the USLTA for the first time the convention has been held on the Pacific Coast. Dates will be announced later.

3. Gilbert Shea of Presidio, Calif., was raised from No. 15 to No. 10 in the national men's singles rankings, dropping Herb Flam to 11th and all others in between one notch.

4. Other rankings remained fixed, with Vic Seixas topping the men's division and Doris Hart heading the women's.

The Pacific Coast won the battle over National tennis dates in a proxy vote. The schedule committee had recommended a five-day rest period before the national tournament.

Davis Cup officials were upset by the vote decision.

"There will be a terrible psychological letdown after the Davis Cup," said Bill Talbert, U.S. Davis Cup captain.

Wales, France Win in Rugby

Wales and France scored narrow decisions in international rugby matches played Saturday.

A first-half try stood up as Wales edged England, 3-0, at Arms Park, Cardiff. France scored a goal in the first half to beat Ireland, 5-3, before 40,000 spectators at Dublin.

Remember When:

Primo Carnera, huge Italian heavyweight, made his North American debut at New York 25 years ago tonight with a one-round knockout over Big Boy Peterson. He won the world title from Jack Sharkey in 1933 and lost it to Max Baer in 1934, turning to wrestling in more recent years.

DID YOU KNOW? By Heaney's

ABOUT THE MIDDLE OF THE 16TH CENTURY A PAWNBROKER IN ENGLAND NAMED WILLIAM KEW STARTED A NEW GAME. HE TOOK DOWN THE THREE BALLS FROM OUTSIDE HIS SHOP AND PLACED THEM ON HIS COUNTER IN HIS OFFICE AND THEN WITH A YARDSTICK IN HIS HANDS HE MOVED THE BALLS FROM PLACE TO PLACE. THEN MR. KEW OBTAINED SMALLER BALLS AND SET UP A TABLE WITH SIDE POCKETS AND WAS SOON PLAYING BILLIARDS. WITH BILL KEW PLAYING WITH A YARDSTICK IT ISN'T HARD TO SEE HOW THE NAME OF THE GAME AND OTHER WORDS IN CONNECTION WITH IT GOT THEIR START. IT IS SAID TOO THAT ONE OF THE FIRST MEN TO TAKE AN INTEREST IN THE GAME WAS A CANON, OR CLERGYMAN AND THE SHOT HE STARTED IS KNOWN TO THIS DAY AS A "CANNON". WHEN THE FIRST RULES WERE DRAWN UP IT IS INTERESTING TO NOTE THAT SMOKING WAS PROHIBITED WHILE A GAME WAS IN PROGRESS. ALSO A FINE WAS LEVIED FOR SWEARING AND MONEY COLLECTED WAS GIVEN TO THE POOR.

MANY THINGS HAVE CHANGED A GREAT DEAL MORE THAN BILLIARDS IN THE PAST 400 YEARS. ONE EXAMPLE IS THE METHOD OF HEATING A HOME. FOR THE GREATEST CONVENIENCE AND EASE IN OBTAINING FUEL RELY ON HEANEY'S REGULAR OIL DELIVERY SERVICE. TRULY A MODERN WAY TO COMFORT AND HEALTH.

WHAT IN THE POGGY BLUE EYED WORLD IS BUT YOU?
OH, HULLO, FRIENDS! I IS PRACTICIN' GROUNDHOGGIN—IT'S A GOOD PERFESSION—NEXT WEEK I IS GONNA BE ALL THE RAGE.
THAT BOY AIN'T HARLY GONNA LAST 'TIL NEXT WEEK...
THERE WE GO AGAIN—THAT MAKES TWELVE MORE WEEKS OF WINTER.

RIP KIRBY

EVEN THOUGH WE ARE NOT RELATED DO YOU CALL ME "UNCLE" BECAUSE I KNEW YOUR FATHER AND SO LONG IN THE NAME OF THAT FRIENDSHIP I AM WILLING TO ASK A FAVOR
I'VE DECIDED TO PLAN FOR REVENGE ON RIP KIRBY
APPARENTLY YOU'VE DONE SO A-WHAT I PLANNED

ARCHIE

I EITHER GET MARKED DOWN FOR SPELLING OR PRONUNCIATION!
WELL, I DON'T KNOW HOW YOU SPELL IT BUT YOU PRONOUNCE "EITHER" WRONG!
I DO NOT! YOU'RE THE ONE WHO SAYS IT WRONG!
LET'S ASK A TEACHER TO SETTLE IT!
MR. MAC BRUNGADOON! WHICH IS CORRECT "EE THER," OR "EYE-THER"?
NATHER!
IT'S AY-THER!

BELIEVING THAT CORY STILES IS WRONG HER HELP IS NEEDED TO DISCLOSE TO JUNE HALE KAREN BECOMES EMOTIONAL AND STARTS TO GO UPSTAIRS!
PLEASE KAREN—LISTEN TO ME!
NO SORRY! I DON'T WANT TO BE AT YOUR BIG SISTER
DON'T YOU UNDERSTAND? I DON'T WANT YOU AS A BIG SISTER, KAREN!
YOU'RE MAKING IT AWFULLY TOUGH FOR ME KAREN—EVEN THOUGH I'VE GONE OVER THESE LINES A HUNDRED TIMES IN THE PAST TWENTY-FOUR HOURS!

KERRY DRAKE

THE WONDERS OF THE ELECTRONIC AGE HAVE BEEN HARNESSED WITH VITAL MEDICAL SUCCESS TO THE USES OF WAR—INCLUDING THE WAR ON CRIME!...
TODAY MERRY DRAKE FOR CE DETECTIVE EMPLOYS RADIO TO TRAIL AN AUTO HE CANNOT SEE...
HIS TOOLS ARE A VACUUM TUBE WIRED TO A DRY CELL AND A CAR WITH A "LOOP" ANTENNA...
THE TUBE HIDDEN IN A CIGAR BOX IN THE CAR AHEAD GIVES OFF A CONTINUOUS SHRILL PICKED UP BY DRAKE'S AUTO RADIO WHICH HAS BEEN TUNED TO THE PROPER WAVE LENGTH!..
..DRAKE ATTACHES A ROD WHICH CAN TURN THE LOOP AS HE DRIVES ..ARE A MECHANICAL BLOODHOUND IS READY FOR THE HUNT!

JULIE JOENS

MAYBE YOU CAN SWALLOW THEIR PHONY MA—BUT NOT ME! DO WE BEAT IT—OR DO YOU HANG AROUND ACTING LIKE A DOORMAT?
I MUST CERTAINLY DO NOT PLAN TO BE THEIR MAID! I'LL EVEN MARRY MAYNARD MAYBANK!
A WOMAN GIVES THE BEST YEARS OF HER LIFE TENDING TO THE NEEDS OF THE SICK—AND WHAT'S HER REWARD? INSULTING INNUENDOES! I JUST WANT YOU GIRLS TO KNOW.
THAT I HAVE ONLY THE GREATEST RESPECT FOR YOUR FATHER! AS FAR AS HAVING DESIGNS ON HIM—WELL!! I'M HARDLY A DECREPIT OLD CAD! I'VE HAD AMPLE OPPORTUNITIES TO REMARRY AND I DOUBT I SHALL HAVE MANY MORE!!

I WANT YOU TO COME STRAIGHT BACK HERE AFTER YOU'VE WALKED JEEP HOME, BUMPS!
OKAY, MOM!
THIS FEUD BETWEEN JEEP AND BUMPS IS REACHING SERIOUS PROPORTIONS, MARLA
BUMPS ADORES HER BUT HE HATES TO ADMIT IT
I CAN GET MORE MY OWN HOME THAN YOU, MR. BUMPS PERKINS
I WOULDN'T CARE IF YOU EVER GOT HOME BUT MY MOM'S GOTTA WALK TOO, THERE AIN'T SHE'S WHAT I'M GONNA DO
YOU JUST THINK YOU'RE A BIG HERO OR SOMETHIN'. WELL I AIN'T GOIN' ANOTHER STEP UNTIL YOU LEAVE

"I'LL CRY— — — Tomorrow"

By LILLIAN ROTH

With Mike Connolly and Gerold Frank

Lillian Roth used liquor to bridge the extremes in her life—her glittering success in show business as opposed to her personal loneliness and disappointment. Her mother, Katie, had pushed her career through vaudeville to stardom in Hollywood. There she fell in love with David, a young director. His death drove her to the bottle. Increasing alcoholism added to the collapse of her rebound marriage to Willie Richards, an air cadet, and wrecked her second marriage to Judge Ben Shalleck of New York. Marriages three and four were alcoholic nightmares that left Lillian physically and financially paupered. Self-commitment to a mental institution straightened her out for only a short time. In a week-long stupor Lillian contemplated suicide, but rejected it to "clutch at a straw"—Alcoholics Anonymous.

CHAPTER XII

IT was shortly after noon when I arrived before the headquarters of Alcoholics Anonymous. The building was a former church on 41st St., near 10th Avenue, in Hell's Kitchen, only a few blocks from where I'd lived as a child. Laboriously I climbed the steps.

"A girl friend of mine is very drunk and needs help. What can I do for her?" I asked a fat jovial man sitting at a desk near the entrance.

"Ma, my!" he said, as he stood up. "Well, now, let us take care of it. But first things first. Aren't you having a little trouble, too, Miss?"

HOUSEWIFE ANSWERS JUNK MAIL IN KIND

WASHINGTON (Nana)—Fed up with deliveries of "junk" mail—the sales offers that land in your postbox addressed only to "occupant" or "postal patron"—An irked Washington housewife has pointed the way to do something about it.

She has started to fill out all the blank order forms and send them back in the enclosed envelopes which call for collection of postage at the other end.

But on the line for the customer's name and address, she writes only "occupant" or "postal patron" and her home town—just as the "junk" was addressed to her.

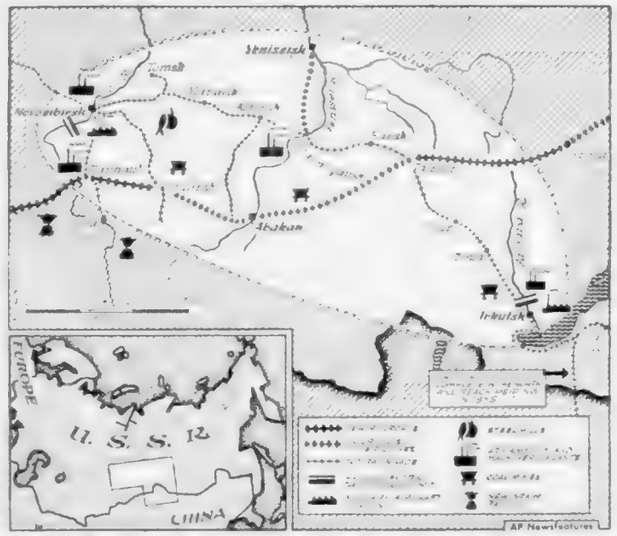
Busy Russians Giving Super Priority To Industry In Mid-Asia

Before joining the AP staff in Moscow in 1947, Tom Whitney was chief of the economic section of the American embassy there for three years. The following story is based on his careful examination of Soviet publications, assessed against his background of 17 years as a student of the Russian economy.

By TOM WHITNEY

EVIDENCE keeps coming in to show the Soviets are giving super priority to the build-up of their strategically-located economic fortress in the heart of Asia.

This area, as outlined on the accompanying map, is an elongated ellipse stretching a thousand miles from Novosibirsk on the Ob River to Irkutsk on Lake Baikal, and more than 300 miles from the port of Yeniseisk on the river of that name to the region below Abakan on the new South-Siberian trunk railway.



In and around this ellipse scholars have built by far the most ambitious work and speed-up plans in all of Soviet progress. Economic planning has strong personal emphasis on raising the standard of living, and many new things are coming into the area, including a new steel mill, many new plants, mines and factories, and the beginning of nuclear power.

This entire Soviet area of the south has a large number of the products that are in short supply in the European part of the country. Because of the long haul, the cost of transportation from the west is high. Thus, the Soviet press announced the completion of a railway between Tayshet on the new line and Lena River port of Ust Kut, which will bring the Lena River coal fields and heavy industries of Irkutsk and Cheremkhovo into closer contact with the Urals and European Russia.

BIG PROJECTS

Here are some of the big projects in the area:

1. A new steel mill at Novosibirsk. Its capacity is not announced, but it is a big one. It will be operated by the Novosibirsk Metallurgical Combine.

2. A new large power station, built on the Angara River at Irkutsk. It should be operating at full capacity by the end of 1955. Its capacity is not announced, but it is probably around 600,000 kilowatts.

3. A railway is scheduled for completion this year from Taishet to Lena River port of Ust Kut. This will bring the Cheremkhovo coal fields and heavy industries of Irkutsk into closer contact with the Urals and European Russia.

Memories Kept Alive In Book at Solarium

FOR almost two years now, visitors to the Queen Alexandra Solarium at Mill Bay have noticed a handsome big book on a stand just inside the visitors' entrance.

This is the Solarium's Book of Memories—a book with already about 150 entries in spite of the fact that this is the first time its story has been made public.

BENED

The police of Frankfort, West Germany have decided to "stigmatize" impudent drivers and violators of traffic laws. For a serious breach or three slight ones they paint a wide white stripe around the offender's automobile. For an accident where the driver was the guilty party, the car gets a red stripe.

All the traffic policemen of Frankfort have been supplied with two pots of paint and a brush to impose the "stigmas" on the spot whenever there is a violation calling for such penalty.

[illegible] one of the Solarium directors encountered one while visiting relatives. He brought the idea home with him, and it was put quietly into effect.

PRACTICAL TRIBUTES

[illegible]

Clubs Plentiful, Unusual In Denmark's Aalborg

COPENHAGEN (Nana) — Where clubs are concerned, Denmark has a distinguished record. The town of Aalborg alone, with a population of 90,000, has more than 700 known clubs. Among the more remarkable is an association of religious horse owners, and another group which seeks to combat any progress in developing either test-tube babies and test-tube calves.

Elsewhere there is a Society for the preservation of pulling down towers, and even one for the furtherance of the founding of more clubs or societies in Denmark. Since the war a number of Danes, most of them married to Britons, have organized a club for the suppression of fussiness among the British."

Clarinda Added Romantic Touch To Burns' Life

By J. K.

THE Edinburgh period of the all-too-short life of Robert Burns stands out in clear relief, as one of the highlights of his career, and the friendship of Mrs. Maclehose, better known as "Clarinda," is inseparably connected with the period in question. She outlived the poet however by nearly half a century, passing away on 22nd October 1841, in her 83rd year, whereas Burns had only reached the age of 37, at his death in July 1796.

ROBERT BURNS

FIRST MEETING

The first meeting of Mrs. Maclehose and Burns took place on December 7 [illegible] Burns accepted an invitation to take tea at Mrs. Maclehose's house on the 8th but on the 8th met with an accident which confined him to bed suffering for six weeks. His letter of explanation and casual thanks paved a correspondence of a warm nature.

ENGINEERS ADD TO WORLD'S WONDERS IN 1954

Transportation Age Given Added Power

WASHINGTON — A new age of transportation and power opened in 1954. It's herald was the atomic submarine Nautilus, launched in Connecticut on a foggy January day.

That first ship ever built for nuclear engines stands out in a year of high achievement by the world's constructors, the National Geographic Society says.

Nautilus will be capable of circling the globe submerged. Many significant civil and engineering projects launched in 1954 represent man's first large-scale harnessing of atomic energy for useful power. Atomic power plants, locomotives and even ships have come a long step closer to reality.

Tea Sale Drop Predicted Here As Cost Brews

Tea sales in Victoria will drop as soon as the public realizes that recent price increases have pushed top brands to $1.86 a pound, an independent grocer said yesterday.

The grocer said sales will be curtailed as soon as a low to dozen of seven cents a pound expected within the next few weeks goes into effect.

Tea prices have risen by 20 cents a pound in the last two months, the biggest increase of a few, but prices dropped when 10 cents coming last week and restoring preference shifted to the price range is now from the instant brands.

The new increase is expected happen to tea.

As a result of an announcement by the government of Ceylon that it had raised the tea export duty from 20 to 27 cents a pound, which would make price of top grades of the beverage $1.86.

"It's getting just like coffee used to be," the grocer said.

Another grocery pointed out that people could afford to buy more the biggest increase of coffee but prices dropped when 10 cents coming last week and restoring preference shifted to the instant brands.

He said: "The same thing may happen to tea."

School Patrol Gets New Chief

Standard Depot For Viewfield

Further evidence of the steady building boom in Esquimalt came yesterday when Standard Furniture Co. confirmed reports of a $147,000 project.

T. G. Dews, company official, said the former Cobbs store, a house on Viewfield Road has been purchased for $117,000 and will be converted with a $30,000 addition into a stock depot. Adjoining property will be developed and prepared for sale at the lowest cost.

Other business completed, enquiries or planned for the near future on Viewfield for a warehouse for Victoria Wood and Coal Co., car storage firms of Tompkins Auto Metal Ltd. and a branch of Howe Baker, whose headquarters will be moved to North Vancouver.

They follow the $75,000 Mallek warehouse and a Weston bakery.

HOMES, TOO

Residential building is progressing. Reeve A. C. Watson said eight of the 16 lots, lower prices, recently sold. Six of 27 Greenwood Avenue lots sold. Twenty lots on Hadfield will be available soon.

Future building will be on at least 10 lots in the Gosper Avenue subdivision and on Craigflower, Lampson Street, Lampson Place, Wordsley and other streets.

C. H. Wheaton Ltd. will complete work in six to eight weeks on the addition, for which plans were prepared by Wade Stockwell and Associates. The building is 51 by 120 feet and of concrete and cinder-block construction.

Like other plants in the busy Viewfield area, the stock depot has its own railway spur.

Fairey Aviation To Establish Repair Unit at Patricia Bay

The Fairey Aviation Co. of Canada Ltd., is expected to start operation at Patricia Bay Airport on February 1.

Immediate plans call for an aircraft repair unit occupying one or two hangars.

Possibility of later expansion to the manufacture of guided missiles and helicopters is rumored but there is no confirmation.

The company will follow its practice of recruiting and training local labor under the leadership of veteran executives.

The Canadian company has instituted an apprenticeship system based on the operations of its British parent company. This system has been highly successful at the Fairey plant at Eastern Passage, N.S., according to the current issue of Canadian Aviation.

Full Information Needed To Buy Suitable Corsage

BY DEE LAVOIE

When a young man sets out to buy his girl a corsage he usually goes armed with the knowledge of what color she [illegible] the wearing of the big event.

But he'll do even better if he knows the style of the dress, how tall the girl is, what coloring she has, what jewelry she'll have on, and what colors she usually wears.

[illegible] Victoria florist, Miss Dorson Wade, [illegible] Legion Mess Dance Wednesday.

Miss Wade, [illegible] Dec. [illegible] the [illegible] Orchid Ball, [illegible] Legion Mess Dance Wednesday.

[illegible] the dress [illegible] Miss Wade advised.

"There are some flowers that suit a blonde better than a brunette. A tall girl can carry a much more massive corsage than a tiny girl. And if I know what colors she likes I can choose ribbon in one of those shades to contrast with her gown.

"The old controversy of whether to wear a corsage with the flowers pointing upward, which is technically correct, or downward, which is by far the most popular, is getting less important.

"We make so many corsages now in either round or crescent shapes that can be worn either way up and look the same," explained Miss Wade.

Most unusual is [illegible] the ones Miss Dorson Wade is [illegible] for "special occasion" [illegible] gowns and ornaments best them [illegible] for less formal parties.

[illegible] Most unusual corsage Miss Wade has ever made consisted of white carnations with a question mark of red carnations in the centre.

The customer never explained the significance, and Miss Wade still wonders.

She Has Good Appetite

Did I swallow these? Gay Cottingham, five, of Hamilton widens her eyes and looks away from a weird collection of items recovered at various times from her stomach. Gay has swallowed pins, buttons, coins, a thimble and, the gem of her collection, a dud shell. An emergency operation last week removed the cartridge.—(CP Photo.)

Business Picks Up As Market Slackens

NEW YORK (AP)—Business activity picked up in the United States this week even as trading on the stock market slackened.

Automobile production came within a hair's breadth of matching the record set the week of June 17, 1950.

Steel output hovered around 2,000,000 tons, highest in 14 months, while production of crude oil and electric power smashed all records. Department store sales were running a hefty 16 per cent ahead of year-ago levels. Toolmakers reported a sharp upturn in new orders.

There were expressions of optimism from President Eisenhower and the president of General Motors.

Against this background several "go-slow" signals flashed. At the Chicago convention of the National Association of Home Builders, Dr. George Conklin, the economist for the Guardian Insurance Co., warned contractors they'd be confronted with a "very tight mortgage market" if home building continues at last year's pace.

TIGHTER MONEY SUPPLY

Evidence of a tighter money supply right now was seen in the higher interest rates posted by dealers in commercial paper unsecured short-term loans to business firms. It was the second increase in less than a week.

There were new rumblings on the labor front. Steel industry leaders said it was practically a cinch that either the CIO Steelworkers or the CIO United Auto Workers, or both, would go on strike this summer.

Hottest segment in the economy this week was the automobile industry which turned out more than 163,000 cars. General Motors led the parade in this second biggest production week in the industry's history, with Buick and Chevrolet setting new highs.

Ford turned out more cars than in any week since the start of the war; Chrysler output tapered off a little but was expected to bounce back fast.

Official Explains Duties

The standards of the food service industry are improving steadily, David W. R. Smith, city sanitary inspector, told a Friday luncheon meeting of the Lions Club.

This is because restaurant operators and food-handlers are anxious to establish their business on a solid footing, he explained.

Mr. Smith described the division of the Victoria-Esquimalt health department to which he belongs as a law-enforcement agency.

"But we are more or less salesmen of public health," he said. "From the research centres we get the factual knowledge which we try to sell to the community for the protection of the health of the public."

TWO-FOLD DUTY

Sanitary inspectors who keep an eye on the food-handling industry have a two-fold responsibility, he said.

The first is to the public, by insuring a safe supply of food and a high standard of service. The second is to the industry itself, by assisting operators to raise their standards.

Though the sanitary inspection force can take recourse to the law courts, it relies more on education to accomplish its objectives, he said, because "education has a more lasting effect."

The division's education program is proving so successful that many restaurant owners are investing heavily in the most modern types of food dispensing and professing equipment, he said.

The sanitation branch recently originated a unique series of food handling classes for restaurant operators.

The division also maintains a consultative service, an inspection service for homes, the water supply system, swimming pools, the wholesale and retail phases of food handling, the milk industry, schools, hospitals and institutions, and a rodent and insect control program.

Wharf Cost At $850,000

VANCOUVER (CP)—Tenders for construction of an $850,000 fishermen's wharf on False Creek will be called as soon as present designs are revised, it was reported here yesterday.

In a million tons of the earth's crust, there are only four tons of uranium.

Do It Yourself

Panels Ideal In Play Area

BY J. RALPH DALZELL
Author of Books on Home Building and Repair

As previously explained, ply- [illegible] wall surfaces. This is especially true where concrete block or placed concrete walls are to be surfaced for play areas. Panels are available in many widths, thicknesses and lengths to fit individual specifications. Cost is reasonable and the home owner can do the job himself.

Plywood panels should not be erected on walls which admit dampness until this condition is corrected. Damp walls can be treated with a coat of white waterproofing Portland cement paint. Or, asphalt saturated and coated paper, with a two-inch lap, can be applied to the face of furring strips. Tacks will hold it in place until the panels are erected. Back prime the panels before putting them up. If sweating cannot be eliminated use exterior-type plywood panels.

Picture X shows part of a concrete block foundation and a typical corner. Joists serve the floor above. Horizontal and [illegible] vertical furring strips, shown at D, B, A and C, should be securely fastened to the foundation using concrete nails for driving into concrete block. On placed concrete, an electric drill with a masonry bit will make holes for any form of masonry bolt. Strips can be made of any wood and should be made at least one-half inch thick and two inches wide.

Fasten corner strips (at C) first. Then fasten vertical strips (at A) exactly sixteen inches on centers from corner C. Horizontal strips (at D) should be located and fastened so panel joints (at E) will be centered over them. Use a carpenter's level to test each strip. Hold a [illegible] eral vertical and horizontal strips, hold a level on the strip held, and make tests.

Place the plywood panels as shown in picture X. Hardware dealers will recommend types of nails needed. The panels may be secured to the furring strips with wood glue and brads, where sweating is unlikely. Panels may be beveled (as at E). A quarter round molding may be used at corners as shown at F.

Picture Y illustrates how a wood post can be surfaced to match the walls. Note the furring and quarter round moldings. Picture Z shows how a beam or girder can be surfaced.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Q.—The tinning will not stay on my electric soldering iron. How can I remedy this?

A.—Rest the point of the iron in a small pad of steel wool. The steel wool will distribute the heat to prevent the iron from overheating and prevent loss of tinning.

Q.—One of our rooms faces east and has large windows. What color of walls and drapes should we use?

A.—For an eastern exposure and ample light, the walls could be painted a deep tan or brown which will absorb some light. The drapes could have a background of tan or brown and spots or patterns of yellow or green.

Scout Proves Value Of Proficiency Badge

BY R. E. MILKS
Executive District Commissioner

Patrol Leader Grant Craigmyle of the First Esquimalt Troop qualified for his mason's badge by putting a Roman brick face on the fireplace at the Scout hall. This is one of the many instances where the value of the proficiency badges has been proven.

A delayed Christmas party was held in the Kings Road hall January 7 by the Elks' Own Cubs and mothers. Gifts were exchanged and an enjoyable evening was spent playing games. These were followed by refreshments.

A combined Court of Honor of the First, Second and Third Mt. Tolmie troops was held to make arrangements for Baden-Powell week. The troops will hold a parents' night on February 18 and a church parade on February 20.

Imperial Ready To Start Pouring Money Into B.C. If Oilfield Found

BY HARRY YOUNG
Colonist Business Editor

TORONTO—Officials of Imperial Oil say that the $9,000,000 they have undertaken to spend on oil exploration in northern B.C. during the next three years is only a fraction of the amount the company will put into the province if an oilfield is [illegible]

"The $9,000,000 agreement we are making with Pacific Petroleums is purely for exploration," said Earl S. Neal, director and general manager of Imperial's producing department when I spoke to him in his office here.

He added that he was reasonably confident that northern B.C. would prove out as an oil-producing area, despite the fact that so far most of the successful operations had been confined to natural gas.

"We are interested in natural gas as well as oil, but it is the oil possibilities of the area which have aroused our interest," said Mr. Neal.

So far the main exploration by Pacific Petroleum and associates in B.C. has been directed chiefly toward building up reserves of natural gas for the pipeline to the Pacific Northwest.

Although a number of oil showings have been made, no complete exploration of the multi-zone Fort St. John field has yet been made.

That is where Imperial Oil will put its experts to work.

This year Imperial will spend $250,000 under its agreement with Pacific Petroleums. The first well location has been picked by Pacific Petroleums, and Imperial is moving its rig in to the site immediately.

The location is at Aitken Creek some four and a half miles southwest of the nearest of the five Buick Creek wells which have been completed as gassers with marginal oil showings.

Mr. Neal said that all the locations this year would probably be chosen by Pacific Petroleums but that Imperial's geophysical and seismic studies would be commenced immediately and as soon as these had been completed. Imperial would direct its own operations.

He pointed out, however, that although the new deal with Pacific represented a new major exploration program for Imperial Oil, it was by no means the full extent of their interests in British Columbia.

"We have been working all summer in the Kahntah block and have run a number of seismic lines. This is another area which Imperial believes to have oil possibilities," said Mr. Neal.

Kahntah is an area some 200 miles north of Fort St. John and east of Fort Nelson where Imperial Oil had wide exploration rights. It is not included in the Pacific acreage on which Imperial is to spend $9,000,000.

Asked whether it would be possible to find a market for oil discovered in northern B.C., Mr. Neal admitted that this was a problem which had to be considered, but looking at it from the practical angle, he noted that the Imperial-Pacific area was only about 200 miles north of where the Trans Mountain Pipeline runs along the Canadian National Railway near Red Deer.

"That does not look to present unreasonable difficulties," he said.

Both G. L. Stewart, chairman of the Imperial Board of Directors and Jack White, president, said they were deeply interested in the possibilities of British Columbia as an oil-bearing area.

Mr. Stewart said his company would do everything in its power to establish the province as an oil producer.

No Cargo, Loch Ryan Won't Dock

The Royal Mail Lines passenger-cargo vessel Loch Ryan, scheduled to dock here Sunday, will go on to Vancouver without stopping because of lack of Victoria-bound cargo, officials of George Paulin Ltd., agents for the owners, said.

The stop was canceled because cargo sent from the United Kingdom to Victoria was insufficient to warrant docking. Any goods aboard the Loch Ryan for this area will be transhipped.

Moderator's Son Sees No Crisis If Students Bypassing Doctrine

A leading churchman's son does not think "it is a great crisis if students do not adhere to Christian doctrine."

Student Walter McLean, whose father, Rev. J. L. W. McLean, is moderator of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, voices this opinion in the latest edition of "The Martlet," Victoria College's newspaper.

He intersperses his views in an article quoting college professors, a newspaper editor and Dr. Brock Chisholm on the subject of religion.

But the writer adds that he thinks a crisis exists if students "do not have enough ambition to find out what is this doctrine."

"The student states he asked Dr. Chisholm if he thought that Christian doctrine limits academic freedom.

"To the extent that any doctrine is fixed and rigid and can not be changed to fit changed circumstances and extended knowledge, yes—it limits academic freedom in those who adhere to it," was his answer, according to Mr. McLean.

Professor Gordon Tracy said he has often been embarrassed by the "militant or messianic approach taken by certain Christian laymen."

"In order to be a Christian a person cannot only witness by deeds," Professor Tracy is quoted as saying.

"The idea that the clergy are the only people who should teach religion does not appeal to me.

"Clergymen are more often than not set off from the rest of society. Students are often bashful about questioning or being seen near a clergyman.

"In this situation a layman can often be the means of breaking this barrier, and speech is certainly a necessity," said the professor.

Questioned about the "campus crisis" by Mr. McLean, physics lecturer David McLay is reported to have said:

"I believe that a very particular crisis exists in the institutions of higher learning in this country, including Victoria College.

"This crisis is the inability of the universities to cope with the crises which face them daily.

"The great crisis to my mind is that the secular institutions of learning do not and cannot emphasize the primacy of service to God," said Mr. McLay.

The teacher is quoted as saying that he will be concerned until every teacher and student of every institution comes to the belief "that all things hold together in Christ."

Mr. McLean concludes his article by saying that Canadians are living on the Christian capital built up by their forefathers.

"It is about time we set aside this, and attempted to form our own Christian capital that is adequate to today's needs," he states.

SHOCKING SPECIMEN

A full-size electric eel, eight feet long, can release almost 1,000 watts of power for a split second.

Now Legitimate Star

Eartha Kitt Prefers Broadway Prestige To Record-TV Cash

NEW YORK (AP) — Eartha Kitt, a tawny girl with red hair dyed black, a dancer's grace and a voice like a charge of electricity, grossed close to $500,000 last year.

There's a strong possibility Miss Kitt will not make so much this year. At 27, she has become a legitimate actress and, although she's the star of the Broadway hit "Mrs. Patterson," her cash pay-off isn't as magnificent as the prestige.

Eartha's best-selling records ("C'Est Si Bon," "Santa Baby" and "I Want to be Evil"), and television have made her a subject of interest all over the continent.

REMAKABLE STYLIST

There are several schools of thought concerning her talents. Some maintain she's no great shakes as a singer, but no one denies she's a remarkable musical stylist.

Eartha was born in South Carolina, the fair-skinned child of sharecropper parents. There had been lean cotton harvests for several years before her birth and as a sort of thanksgiving for the bountiful yield of 1928, her parents named the baby Eartha.

Her father died when she was a small child. Her mother turned her over to a woman in the village to bring up.

"LIKE CINDERELLA"

"It was hard," Eartha says. "I was like Cinderella, with that fair skin and red hair. They made me do all the hard work, the nasty chores."

Then a family friend in New York's teeming Harlem sent for little Eartha. Life in the tenements was different but scarcely better than in the southern tarpaper shacks.

"One night a girl friend and I went to a movie on Broadway," Eartha recalls. "We were standing outside the theatre trying to decide how to spend the last two dimes we had, when a girl came up and asked if we could direct her to a cosmetic shop. We walked a ways together. She told me she was a dancer for Katherine Dunham and that there were some openings . . ."

OFF ON HER OWN

Eartha applied for a spot, won a scholarship, studied for a year and eventually went to Europe with the Dunham dancers. In France she decided to get a singing job in a night-club.

Orson Welles spotted her and cast her as Helen of Troy in his production of "Faust." Eartha moved to London, became a night-club attraction, moved on to Istanbul. She'd picked up six languages and was ready to try her wings back home.

In a short time her pay jumped from $350 a week to $5,000. It has soared to astronomical heights since then.

Motorcyclists Expect Snow

Port Renfrew is the goal of 20 motorcyclists who will leave the city at 10 this morning.

"We don't know what the road conditions are, but we'll go as far as we can," said Victoria Motorcycle Club president Bob Akins.

The intrepid travelers anticipate running into snow and ice on the way, but believe their machines will get them through.

They will go by way of Shawnigan Lake Road to the Bear Creek cutoff, where conditions are expected to be rough.

The trip is one of the club's monthly runs.

Pipes To Skirl, Kilts To Swing At Winter Gathering of Scots

Pipes will skirl and kilts will swing in the tartan-cloaked Victoria Ballroom on February 4 as the Highland Games Association presents its second annual winter gathering.

All the old and some new competitions will be staged.

This indoor meet of Highland dancing and piping events will include a quadrille competition calculated to appeal to all lovers of the square dance.

Cups and prizes galore await the winners of all ages, from nine years up to adult class. The program will be carried out in the true Scottish tradition.

Entries are now being received and should be made to Mrs. John MacKay, 1607 Stanley Avenue, before January 28. The usual fine exhibition of piping and dancing is expected.

Arrangements for the gathering are in the hands of vice-president W. B. Dysart and the executive of the association.

Flooding Seine Causes Paris Crisis

Battered by crippling rain, snowstorm, many European countries are now faced with threat of serious floods as masses of snow have turned small rivers into raging torrents. Such is the case of the usually tranquil Seine River which can be seen overflowing its banks (above) into streets in the centre of Paris. Normally the river is several feet below the top of the quay. While firemen strive with pumps to keep the water level down in Notre Dame, other workers using sandbags and concrete bolstered embankments in downtown Paris.

PARIS (AP)—Rising flood waters of the River Seine washed into the crypt of Notre Dame Cathedral and forced curators at the Louvre to remove some of their priceless art treasures to safety on upper floors Saturday.

With a light rain still falling and the flood crest not yet reached, the government ordered all troops and police in the Paris area to stand by on an emergency basis.

More than 1,000 army engineers, equipped with self-propelled barges, motorboats, two-way field radios and searchlights came into the area for rescue work.

3,000 EVACUATED

Some 3,000 persons already had been moved from homes in low areas of three departments in the metropolitan area. Volunteer groups of students helped rescue people from flooded homes.

The U.S. air base at Chateauroux sent several planeloads of blankets, food packages and portable rafts to the French capital.

Thousands of anxious Parisians lined the banks of their beloved Seine as the water swirled dangerously near the top of retaining stone parapets. Officials gloomily predicted there was worse to come.

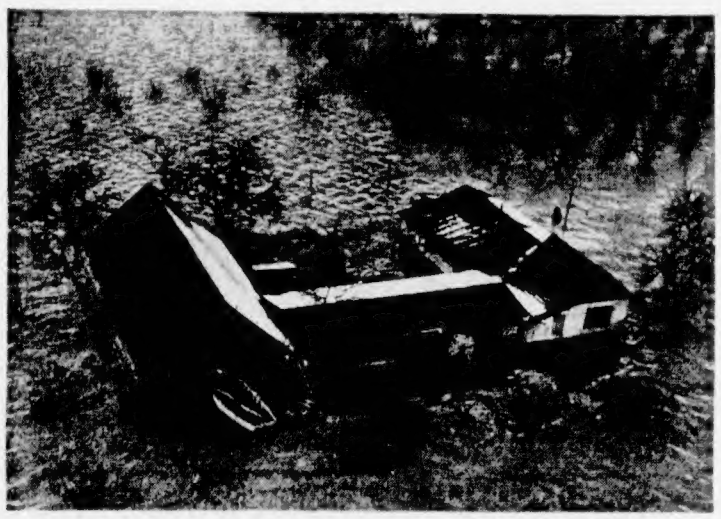
Although central Paris is not yet too badly affected, there is considerable anxiety among those living in lowlying Left Bank areas, which are actually below river level, if the retaining walls should be breached.

FACTORIES CLOSED

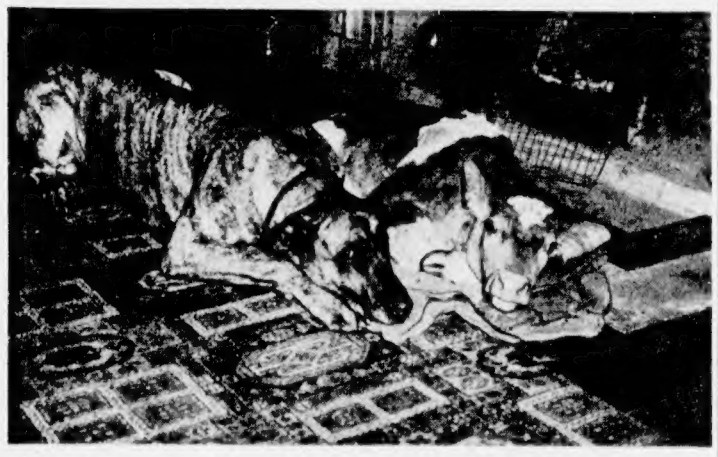
In the big industrial suburbs, hundreds have had to be removed from their homes and a number of factories, including part of the big nationalized Renault motor works, have been forced to close.

Eight miles of riverside quays already are under water in one stretch near Asnieres and the ground floors of houses are flooded.

The main danger to Paris now seems to come from its tributary, the Marne, which is in equally high flood.



This aerial view was made in the Manheim area of West Germany, where the Rhine River has run amok and flooded large areas. The house is completely cut off. Thousands have been evacuated from low-lying areas where property damage is running high. Latest report gave 20 as known number dead as result of floods, landslides, blizzards, across continent.



Huddling for warmth in front of the fire is a few-hours-old calf born on the farm of Mrs. Barbara Woodhouse in Hertfordshire, Eng. Keeping the young animal company and shielding him from draughts caused by recent blizzards is Mrs. Woodhouse's Great Dane, Juno. In northern Scotland, thousands of snow-bound villagers were target for Britain's biggest airline mercy mission. Thirty helicopters dropped food and medical supplies for 34 villages plus tons of hay for sheep and cattle.—(Central Press Canadian Photos.)

Good Luck for Ericka

It will be Happy New Year in Chinatown tonight. The "Year of the Sheep," the 4,653rd Chinese New Year arrives at midnight and the Chinese section here will welcome it to the din of firecrackers, gongs, cymbals and drums. Ericka Joe, 15, beams happily as she finds a Chinese water lily in bloom. If the lily blooms for the New Year it means good luck every day of the year.

'King of the Safecrackers'

Alarm System Kept Mob Safe on Jobs

(When a man switches almost overnight from being a minister to being a safecracker, he has much to learn. In yesterday's installment of this exclusive series the author told of some of his first underworld experiences. Today, his life of crime far behind him, he lives right here on Vancouver Island.)

BY HERBERT EMERSON WILSON

(Copyright, Canada 1955, by Herbert Emerson Wilson and The Daily Colonist.)

In my determination that the jobs pulled by my mob would be as thorough as the mind of man could provide, I had devised an alarm system which was to stand us in good stead. It was also destined to give me some of the worst moments of my life—but not on this job.

Out of my little black bag I took a bell buzzer with a push-button and two-way wire system, and ran it out to the street with Cox as its guardian.

I buzzed once and waited. Our plan called for a two-buzz reply if all was clear, while three buzzes meant to grab for our guns (yes, we carried them, though we never had to use them) and run for the exit, fast.

Cox's two buzzes came right back.

I touched the fuse wires to a flashlight battery — and heard nothing louder than the grunt of a pig from the safe. The door was blown—an act that was always the thrilling climax of any score for me.

I buzzed Cox once more, got his double reply, then we set to work once more, Cox, a gun in his hand, took the watchman on his half-after the hour rounds. I returned to the safe.

Score in Keester

This one had a thin steel secondary door which I opened quickly with an electric drill. All the score was in the keester—a small, heavy steel chest often found within safes. This I blew with a second charge of soap, then dumped the box's contents into a bag without even looking at it.

Ten minutes later we were far away, splitting up for the night.

We met next morning for the split in Herb's hotel room. That safe had held $25,000 in cash and $16,000 in negotiable bonds. It looked like a lot, but was the smallest score we ever made.

I promised to tell you about the mob's share system. Here, when we were dividing our first haul, seems as good a time as any. The system began then and never changed.

Unlike many mob chiefs, I took no cut off the top, leaving the rest to split the remainder. It was share and share alike, all down the line. In later years, when the mob operated in three districts—east, central and west—every member of the mob in one district shared in a score made in that district, even if he had no actual part in hitting the mark. And his share was the same as my own.

Each man bore his own expenses of operation, for we had no central fund. His travels on a job, his hotel bills, telegrams and other expenses he paid for himself.

In making a split, cash of course was shared out at once. Negotiable bonds had to be fenced, at a remote market, and obviously at a discount. The net yield in turn, minus the expenses involved in the fencing, was divided equally among the mobsters concerned.

To Highest Bidder

Any valuables turning up in the loot were turned out on a table. If any one of the mob wanted them, he made a bid. Highest bidder took the watch, ring, or whatever, and paid cash for it. This cash in turn went into the common pool.

Only one of our jobs was an all-jewel score. Our mark on that occasion was the brownstone mansion of Mrs. Charlotte King Palmer, just off Fifth Avenue in New York.

Mr. Palmer, a former actress, was highly solvent, and had a large portion of her wealth in jewels—particularly in a famous string of matched pearls. When our usual casing of the mark informed us that Mrs. Palmer was also somewhat careless, three of the mob went to work.

Wearing the slight but effective disguises that were a further part of our system, the three spent hours, much of it under the stricken eyes of Mrs. Palmer and a couple of servants, in cleaning out the place.

I can still see that string of pearls — 210 of them, pear-shaped and perfectly matched —that cost Mrs. Palmer $300,000 in Paris. She had them insured for $250,000.

The rest of the jewels the boys lifted from Mrs. Palmer were valued at $400,000, making it one of our bigger scores. The stuff was harder, to handle than cash, and the pearls had to be cut into three ropes, one sold in Reno, one in London, England, and one in Paris.

I said just now that disguises were a part of our system. Part of the casing of any work was a visit to that city's theatrical costuming shops to see what was new. We always kept it simple—a mustache, eyeglasses, a change of clothing—but it was effective. The descriptions handed out by Mrs. Palmer and her servants were well off the track.

There was even one occasion when we applied a disguise to the mark itself.

Soviet's 'Heart Exposed'

New Missile Big Threat To Russia

U.S. Can Strike From Home Base

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States was reported Saturday to be nearing the "payoff stage" in developing atomic missiles that can be guided from this continent to the heart of Communist Russia.

A high defense official said: "We are today at the payoff stage in the development of the missile art that far exceeds anything anybody known to me has yet done."

TERRIFIC SPEED

One type of rockets would attain an early burst of speed of about 9,000 miles per hour, to drop like bullets behind the Iron Curtain.

The other advanced type of inter-continental missile is jet powered, traveling more slowly, with built-in guidance mechanism capable of taking bearings from the stars.

The missile men say that half the weapons launched should explode their devastating nuclear loads within a target circle of no more than 20 miles in diameter.

To achieve this degree of accuracy, the scientists are developing more effective propulsion. They are simultaneously pushing the refinement of mechanisms to direct the missiles' electronic brains.

Officials say equal emphasis is going into the job of protecting the United States against the missile threat from Russia.

But despite the Nike anti-aircraft missiles with which the army is ringing the nation's capital, there is still no guarantee that all enemy bombers would be knocked down.

Leaders Discuss Strategy

TAIPEH, Formosa (AP)—Vice-Admiral Alfred M. Pride, commander of the U.S. 7th Fleet, arrived in Taipeh this morning and plunged into a conference with Maj.-Gen. William C. Chase, head of the U.S. military assistance and advisory group.

The 7th Fleet commander, who Saturday left the British Crown colony of Hong Kong suddenly on his flagship, the cruiser Helena, landed at the city of Tainan in southern Formosa.

The purpose of his visit was not disclosed but presumably touched on possible American air and naval support for any Nationalist evacuation of the Tachen Islands 200 miles north of Formosa along the Red China coast.

It was reported here that women and children were being evacuated from the Tachens but details were being withheld for security reasons, it was stated.

Captain Branded Coward

HAMBURG, Germany (UP)—A German sea captain charged with cowardice by members of his crew because he would not try to rescue 12 drowning men on a sinking ship was criticized by a maritime court today.

The court ruled that Capt. Franz Krammer, 63, Hamburg, should have kept his 7,307-ton Liberian tanker Casino standing by the wreck of the Dutch coastal ship "Carpo" off the southern tip of England last November 27 until all hope for survivors had vanished.

Members of Krammer's crew testified he refused to risk a rescue attempt in the heavy North Sea storm and ordered the Casino to proceed after standing by for one hour and 55 minutes.

Half of Krammer's 36-man crew charged him with cowardice and left the ship in protest in Rotterdam two days after the Carpo went down.

Krammer defended himself by claiming he had to consider the safety of his own ship in the bad storm. He said that was why he ordered his vessel to proceed.

Toll Rises In Party On Ship

HALIFAX (CP)—The number of persons in naval hospital here following a poisonous methyl-alcohol party aboard the aircraft carrier HMCS Magnificent rose to 47 Saturday night.

Eleven of the 47 who drank the concoction were reported in serious condition and five were on the danger list.

Navy officials said the men drank a quantity of duplicating machine fluid, which had a base of deadly methyl-alcohol.

Earlier Saturday only 40 men were reported poisoned but the navy urged all men who had attended the party to come forward for treatment. Apparently another seven sought treatment.

Naval doctors said as little as one ounce could seriously endanger the person who drank it.

Names of the sailors were withheld until close relatives could be notified.

Derelict Starts Back

CHICAGO (UP)—A once-distinguished law professor who proved to a judge he has "still got it," started to battle his way back from skid row yesterday with the promise of a job as court adviser.

William G. Wood, 65, who says he drank himself to skid row 2½ years ago because of trouble at home, won the job offer at $5 a day yesterday by successfully defending a fellow derelict in police court.

Wood was called to the bench as Judge Hyman Feldman started to hear the cases of 140 drunks picked up from skid row streets and alleys during the night.

"Let's see if you've still got it," Feldman said after learning that Wood had once been a lawyer and a law professor. "I want you to defend one of these men."

Tieless and wearing rumpled clothing, Wood called on his 40 years of legal experience and won the case.

Feldman was so impressed he said he would like to have Wood sit on the bench with him and help dispose of the skid row cases.

"Judge, for $5 a day, I'll come in here every day and try to be whatever help I can," Wood said.

"You've got a job," replied Feldman. "You come in here Monday — sober — and you'll get your $5."

Wood spent the rest of the day at the judge's side, advising him on the character of the men being tried.

He said he once taught law at Kent College of Law here and that three judges now sitting on the county court bench had been his students back in his "good" days.

Pool Shark Winds Up Behind the Eight-Ball

CALGARY, Alta. (BUP)—James Booth pleaded guilty to a charge of vagrancy yesterday, but one sneer too many cost him an extra three months in jail.

Booth had told police he "got by" on the money he made playing pool. He pleaded guilty to the charge.

"Have you anything to say," asked the magistrate.

Booth shrugged.

"Three months," said the magistrate.

"Hah, hah," sneered Booth.

"Six months," said the magistrate.

Booth returned to the cells without comment.
